U.S. SPEEDS REFUGEE AID, WORK OF CHURCH PRAISED

By MARJORIE L. FILLIAYW
Florida’s Cuban refugees, now some 40,000 in number, were assured of continued aid from the federal government this week as religious and lay leaders from all sections of the United States met in Miami to unite in an accelerated program of resettlement.

New U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff arrived in Miami Monday to view first-hand the problems of the refugees and confer with Bishop Coleman F. Carroll and other leaders who have spearheaded the drive to secure federal aid for the Cuban families.

“I am here because human beings are in trouble,” Mr. Ribicoff said. “This nation has always held out a helping hand to people in trouble.”

WILL KEEP DIGNITY
Promising that “whatever programs we undertake will keep for these proud people their dignity and self respect,” he spent three days visiting the Centro Hispano Catolico, diocesan Spanish Center and the Cuban Refugee Emergency Center where he talked with officials and refugees.

To Work in Diocesan Drive

Thousands Volunteer For DDF

Volunteers by the thousands have responded to the appeal for active workers to participate in the 1963 Development Fund Campaign of the Diocese of Miami. The call was made in announcements from the altar at every Mass in every Church of the Diocese last Sunday.

Beginning next week, all parishes of the Diocese of Miami will share in all the national programs of spiritual, social and athletic activities which the CYO provides.

The spotlight has focused on Catholic youth in the Diocese of Miami.

Comprising nearly one-fourth of the Catholic population here, Catholic junior citizens between six and 29 are now nearly 85,000 strong.

To meet the needs of the young, every parish in the Diocese will undertake a Catholic Youth Organization program.

New Youth Program Coming For Parishes Of Diocese

The spotlight has focused on Catholic youth in the Diocese of Miami.

Comprising nearly one-fourth of the Catholic population here, Catholic junior citizens between six and 29 are now nearly 85,000 strong.

To meet the needs of the young, every parish in the Diocese will undertake a Catholic Youth Organization program.

Varied Program

The CYO itself is a nationwide affiliation of groups providing a Catholic environment for the leisure-time activities of young Catholics.

By uniting with the National Catholic Youth Organization, local parish youth groups throughout the Diocese will now share in all the national programs of spiritual, cultural, social and athletic activities which the CYO provides.

As a first step in producing the “new look” for youth, priests from every parish will attend a Youth Conference to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 21.

Briefing Session

The conference will feature as guest speaker Monsignor Joseph E. Schieder, national director of all Catholic Youth Organization chapters.

Monsignor Schieder has come to Miami at the request of Bishop Carroll in order to explain to the priests of the Diocese how CYO units are to be established on a parish level.

Father Walter Dockrell, diocesan Director of Youth activities, has hailed the coming conference as the start of large-scale, far-reaching conquests of young souls for the cause of Christ.
Archbishop Alter Protests Federal Grants To Schools

CINCINNATI (NC) — Archbishop Earl J. Alter of Cincin- nati has added his voice to pro- tests against massive Federal aid to education that ignores private schools.

The prelate charged that professional educators push big Federal aid programs because they want to take con- trol of public schools from citizens and local school boards.

He said exclusion of Catholic schools from Federal aid pro- posals will result in “injustice, discrimination and increased hardships.”

INCREASED COSTS

He indicated that increased costs may force curtailment of the lower grades in Catholic schools and might mean elimi- nation of the first grade in all new parochial schools in this archdiocese of 472,000 Catholics.

The Archbishop came out in favor of long-term Federal loans at low interest for all schools, public and private.

Declaring that he does not want direct subsidy from the government for religion or reli- gious instruction, the Archbishop said: “But we do ask for auxilliary services, including bus transportation, medical services, textbooks at our option.”

SPOKE TO LAYMEN

Archbishop Alter’s remarks in a speech to 2,500 men at- tending the annual dinner of the priest, lawyers and public officials.

Cardinal Spellman charged that a proposal by a “task force” of President Kennedy that $5.8 billion be granted exclusively to public grade schools was a pro- gram of discrimination that would penalize parents of pri- vate and parochial school pe- ple for exercising their con- stitutional right to send their children to no-school schools.

Archbishop Alter said the al- leged needs of schools are “greatly exaggerated.” He charged that adding from two to six billion dollars in Federal aid to the U.S. budget would be “economically disastrous.”

Education costs have in- creased 74 times since 1900, he pointed out, while the total na- tional income has increased only 28 times in the same time.
Teachers Of Diocese To Hold Institute

Religious and lay teachers of schools in the diocese will convene for a two-day series of conferences designed to enable them to look closely at their profession and to propose methods of improving it.

Cabinet Crisis In Lebanon Threatened Over School Aid

BERUIT, Lebanon (NC) — Lebanon’s government is split and its cabinet threatened by the question of state aid to Catholic schools.

Minister of Education Rabbi Kamal Zuhbi, a Moudem, is urging a cut in government aid and has accused Catholic schools of “maintaining a spirit of imperialism in the country.”

Catholic school authorities, however, have obtained assurance from President Paul Chahine, a Maronite Rite Catholic, that their institutions will continue to receive aid.

DELYAS DECISION

Leaders of Lebanon’s Moslem minority, currently growing in numbers and political influence, are backing the stand of the Education Minister.

Lebanon, a Middle Eastern country slightly smaller than Connecticut, won its independence from France following World War II. Its population of about 1,500,000 is a little more than half Arab. A majority of the Christians are Maronite Rite Catholics.

BERLIN, Germany (NC) — Father Gregory Sontag, S.J., a native of Missouri and a veteran of 20 years of missionary work, was found slain in his office here.

BERLIN (NC) — Archbishop Heinrich Wienen, 78, outgoing critic of communism and anti-Semitism, died at age 77.

He was named a bishop in 1937, and became head of the Mainzen diocese, in the Soviet zone of Germany, in 1945. He had also served as director of German Catholic Charities.

Red Propaganda And Pillage Reported In Eastern Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (NC) — Congolese troops supporting deposed premier Patrice Lumumba have brought pillage and communist propaganda to the eastern Congo, according to reports reaching here.

In their drive southward from the Lumumbist stronghold of Oriental province against Kasa-ngu province, they have overrun the province of Kivu which is sandwiched between the two.

Anicet Kasaruml, whom they installed as premier of Kivu after deposing Premier Jean Marie Mubuka, is widely regarded as a communist. He has admitted to a radio broadcast from the provincial capital of Bukavu that he is supported by the Lumumbist troops rather than by the people.

It has been reported that Premier Mubuka died under torture in Stanleyville, the capital of Oriental province. Many civil servants and educated people have also been sent to that capital of Lumumbist forces in the east.

Kasaruml has renamed streets in Bukavu after himself and leftist leaders like Premier Sekou Touré of Guinea.

Dr. George Hoffman, Swiss representative of the international Red Cross, has reported that new European refugees have been kidnapped from Bukavu Hospital. He said the Lumumbist troops were looking for him in the city.

The United States and other western countries have urged their nationals to leave Oriental and Kivu provinces. France has told its citizens they must leave.

Many Europeans have sought protection by the United Nations forces, which U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold has said are threatened with dismantlement. He has appealed to other nations to send replacements for troops being withdrawn from U.N. forces by the Congo.

Polish Reds Ban School Religions

BERLIN (NC) — Poland’s ruling Communist party has adopted a resolution to stop all after-school religious instruction in public schools there, according to a report in the official Polish news agency PAP.

This would nullify a major part of the agreement reached in December of 1956 between the Polish Bishops and a Communist government then anxious to obtain full cooperation of Poland’s predominantly Catholic population. It would probably bring the simmering struggle over religion in Poland to a full boil.

The resolution, called for by uprisings of all religious instruction from the public schools by the 1963-64 school year. No legislation would be required.
Proposals Of Federal Aid Called New Form Of Bias

LOS ANGELES (NC) — Even as it seeks to eliminate racial discrimination, the nation is threatened with the new danger of discrimination in education, a speaker warned here.

The danger is in Federal aid to educational proposals which deliberately exclude one billion dollars of America's children because they are not enrolled in state schools, Frank C. Meyers, past state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, said at the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union's Communion breakfast.

Exclusion of private education from Federal aid, Mr. Meyers said, "means that a sizable percentage of the people of our United States are classified as an inferior category of citizens — as second-class citizens, and not entitled to benefits given to children as a whole."

"Let us never forget that the Founding Fathers of this great nation were the products of private education, which, before and for years after the birth of this republic, was the only system of education we knew," he continued.

Mr. Meyers pointed out that 15 per cent of the total U.S. school enrollment was in private schools. Though the percentages of this 15 per cent pay separately and additionally for the education of their children, none is exempt from taxes.

Proposed legislation provides funds to assist state and local areas in the construction, maintenance and conduct of facilities of public schools only. Mr. Meyers stated.

Refugee School Aid?

The Editor's Comment

In the past few days, not only the refugees from Cuba but all other nations as well, are more interested in their plight, were much encouraged by the presence here of a large group of resettlement directors from various parts of the nation.

These experienced men, drawn from religions and non-sectarian groups, will试图 in their home areas to spread the responsibility for helping the refugees to many cities in the United States.

It was also heartening to note President Kennedy last week in sending to Miss Leland Ribicoff, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, to learn the problems at first hand and to give the President a detailed report of the situation. Kennedy had already on various occasions indicated his deep interest in the matter and held up the American tradition of offering a helping hand to those in need.

We should realize by now that the complex problems involved in caring for the refugees are not going to be solved in a few days, but it is true that a considerable progress has been made already.

Much credit for able fact-finding studies must go to Mr. Tracy Voorhees, the recently resigned representative of President Eisenhower. Mr. Voorhees succeeded in laying the groundwork Federal help for the refugees and called national attention to the work being done here, especially at the diocesan Spanish Center.

All of us will watch with intense interest now the unfolding of Federal plans to bring immediate and effective aid to the localities. Particularly are we all anxious to see what assistance will be given to the education of the refugee children. The Diocese has used every conceivable facility in helping these refugees find their way. The National Catholic Welfare Council Superintendent, Thomas Bailey, called for Federal aid to finance the schooling of Cuban children here, including aid for preschool school children.

The present emergency requires such help for private schools in order that this acute social need may be adequately met.

Your Gift To Aging

The dedication of Lourdes Residence for the Aged this coming Sunday by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll marks the fulfillment of a promise which the Diocese, many times, has made to provide an equipped institution for a large number of our older people.

Since its opening a few weeks ago, it has been gratifying to hear from all over the Diocese appreciative comments from people who have visited the magnificent building or sent representatives of an equipped institution for a large number of our older people.

The whole country has been given considerable information in recent months about the serious problems now facing the nation with regard to the care of the aged. We are told that there are now 16 million people over 65, and the life expectancy is 54 years. The increasing elderly effect is being made to alert communities and individuals to the pressing need for planning and erecting of such institutions as Lourdes Residence.

The institutions now rapidly filling up with older people range in age to eighties and nineties and are in need of all sorts of help and attention. Only 158 residents can be served in this residence at the moment. We are looking forward to the expansion of this project.

It stands as another tribute to all our people, who through the Diocesan Development Fund collection of one year ago indicated by their generosity that the Diocese could not get along without the Lourdes Residence.

State Of The Union

A reader of history a hundred years from now will find in President Kennedy's State of the Union message a picture of America and the world in the year 1961 which will not make pleasant reading. Some disagree with certain aspects of his message, especially the economic proposals, but in general the majority of Americans welcome the blunt, frank approach to their common problems.

One of the things we do not like to hear but have an obligation to face were these: "The present state of the economy is disturbing... The American economy is in trouble:" With regard to the international field, "the tide of events has been running out and time has not been our friend."

However there were other points which we were encourage to hear, such as: "We resolve to communicate, to face the fact that they have never yielded their ambitions for world dominion. Concerning Cuba: "Questions of economics and trade are among the most pressing to-day. We should not be swayed by a Communistdomination in this hemisphere can never be negotiated."

The President put the burden of cooperation on the American people. We feel that whatever political difference may be, our citizens are united with the President in facing this gigantic task. We have been softened by materialism and weakened by lowered moral standards, but with the grace of God we can be renewed in spirit and in will and solve the exceedingly complex problems of the present and the future.

"Realism" Of Smutty Shows

Badly Distorts Real Thing

By JOSEPH BREG

Modern discussions about decency in print and in drama do not seem to me to get to the point. The point is that sex is immensely sacred.

Those who try to express that sacredness, and to attack others for it, are using their talents well. Those who don't, aren't.

Apologists for what is called realism — usually meaning overexplicit, overgraphic portrayal — are quick to quote Cardinal Newman's statement that you can't have a sinless literature about a sinful people. But not for a moment do I believe that Cardinal Newman meant anything like what these people like to suppose he meant.

WRONG MEANING

I am confident that he did not, if the finest intention of condemning any compromise with immorality or even indecency.

The true artist can deal with sin without wallowing. The best mystery-story writers do it all the time, handling the weird and grisly crimes in a way that shows evil as evil and goodness as good.

Our tendency to go wrong on sex — to be trapped and degraded by it — is more than strong enough to make it so. We are just beginning to understand the weird-crazed nature of the sexual madness.

Marriage as a sacrament elevates sex to a higher sacredness; but in itself sex has never been other than holy. Only blindness about it, ignorance of its glorious ends, and resulting use of it, ever made it profane.

WORK OF THE ARTIST

To uplift minds in right reverence for sex is the proper task of the writer, the artist or the movie-maker who touches on the subject.

Sex has to do with propping Heaven and earth — and perhaps the cosmos. It has to do with love; with that noblest of all nobilities, the unselfish, sacrificial desire for the good of the beloved.

Sex can be greedy, crude and cruel; but it can be used as it should be. It is not sex in its power to uplift, to sanctify, to ennoble the life of man.

The popular composer who sings, "I hold you in your arms, as I have held you in my heart," is frozen thousand times closer to the truth about sex than the "realistic" writer. And the song that closes, "Because God gave me you," goes to the heart of the real realism which seeks sex for what it is.

IGNORANCE PERHAPS

He who does not hold his beloved in his heart does not truly hold her at all. What he reaches for is not love but a barren, bitter counterfeit. He is ignorant about sex because he does not see that physical love is empty unless it expresses love and soul for soul, person for person.

And whoever does not thank God for his beloved ignores the Source from which she comes, and the sacredness with which she is invested.

If sex does not foster and increase love, does not ennoble but degrades it, is not a mere banner-bearer for a small clique of dictators, it is not a liberal or conservative.

For the problems of our time are frightfully and what is needed is in a government with the highest possible degree of intelligence upon these problems and public officials whether they approach these problems with a pro-conservative or liberal political philosophy, I confess I am tired of reading discussions about whether Catholics should be liberals or conservatives.

YOUNG VETERAN

American Catholics are American and most Americans are reluctant to tie themselves up in any political faction. In the average American there is a little of Hamilton and a little of Jefferson, a conservative trend and a liberal tendency. It is this contradiction that gives spice to American life for no politician knows just when he must use what argument in order to hold the liberal will come out on top of the conservative and vice versa.

In his address, the President emphasized the role which the writer, the artist or the movie-maker play in the art, the solution of practical problems. In his choice of a theme, President Kennedy has shown that he is not held by any ideology or to any narrow posture of life.

He said almost nothing about any political ideology. Probably he has surprised some of our European friends who can't imagine politics free of ideology.

In France for instance politics has been debilitated for many years by the presence of ideological gurus who were supposed to hold the key to the 'right pet ideas than on advanced, we see a return of the countries, Below the time of the end of World War II and the advent of the French man, French historians see a story of a sickening succession of doctrinaire political scientists in public office.

A PRACTICAL ART

In fact, European critics of our politics have been watching the same mistake in assessing our writers as we ourselves have been doing about our political leaders. They see two schools of thought and imagination in American literature, the Puritan school and the rationalist school. They try to force a choice between Catholic and secular thinking and choosing one or the other.

They are unwilling to believe that both artists and politicians can find both streams of thought represented for both parties are the same.

Politics is preeminently an art, more of an art than a science. If it is a very practical art, the solution of practical problems. In his choice of a theme, President Kennedy has shown that he is not held by any ideology or to any narrow posture of life.

He said almost nothing about any political ideology. Probably he has surprised some of our European friends who can't imagine politics free of ideology.

Religion Isn’t A Matter Of Feelings

U.S. Speeds Aid To Refugees

The United States has received thousands of displaced persons in its history. But this situation is different. Here in Miami we have been faced with the problem of caring for these people. We have been given the opportunity and the privilege of helping them and of playing an active role in the fight against communism.

Explaining the role of the Diocese of Miami in aiding the refugees, Father Walsh told delegates, "Following the example of the Church, this tradition has sought out the needy of the world to help them. There were two factors that helped to accelerate this effort. One is the fact that the vast majority, over 90 per cent, of the people are Catholic and belong to a part of a Catholic culture and tradition, in need they turn to the Church for counsel and material help."

"CITED BY PREPARED"

Pointing out to his listeners, many of whom were waiting for the first time the plight of the refugees, that the Diocese of Miami had established a center for Spanish-speaking people 15 months ago, Father Walsh explained that he has been working with others for the work of the Centro Hispano Catolico. It would have been impossible to demonstrate to the Federal Government that Miami and Dade County had a problem and needed help.

"The role played by the Church and its various social welfare agencies has been acknowledged by all, from President Eisenhower down to this recognition," he said. "The subsequent publicity has enabled us to increase our services in a way beyond our most ambitious expectations."

Contributions already received by the Diocese of Miami include $50,000 from the Orange County Farm Bureau; $10,000 from Texaco, Inc., the Rockefeller Foundation; Laurence Rockefeller; Bishop Ernest Primrose of Manchester, N.H.; Bishop Clarence G. Isamonn of Columbus, O., and Sectional Cuba, an organization founded by Spanish-speaking children in aid of the program at Centro Hispano Catolico. Parishes in the Miami Diocese have also made large donations of money, food and clothing.

"He revealed that services valued at more than $100,000 a month have been rendered by agencies of the Miami Diocese to thousands of refugees and emphasized that 2,000 Cuban children have been enrolled in parochial schools. "At the present time," he said, "my agency is paying out $10,000 a week in rent for 550 families, and up to 100 baskets of food are distributed daily at Centro Hispano Catolico. "Reestablishment is not the 'whole' or 'immediate' answer," Father Walsh said.

REFUGEE HANDS applaud the message of President John F. Kennedy assuring them that their return to Cuba will be expedited when conditions permit, during a reception held Sunday.

2,000 REFUGEES crowded Miami's Dade County Auditorium to hear Tracy S. Voschos explain the need for resettlement in other areas of the country. Msgr. John J. Fitzpatrick gave the invocation at the meeting attended by delegates from U.S. parishes.

MIAI Diocese's program for Cuban refugees is outlined by Father John B. Walsh, for interested conference delegates.

REFRESHMENTS served by the Cuban Emergency Refugee Center were enjoyed by Cubans who attended Sunday's meeting which was highlighted by a panel of speakers familiar with refugee problems and urgent needs of Cuban families.

URGENT NEEDS of Cuban refugees are emphasized for conferences by Sister Miriam, O.P., superior of Centro Hispano Catolico. More than 160 priests from dioceses throughout the U.S. joined representatives of Church World Service, United HIAS and International Rescue.

Catholic Relief Services director, Bishop Edward Swanstrom, center, and Msgr. John McCarthy, left, assistant director, hear from Sister Miriam, O.P., the plight of Cuban refugees and details of the relief program inaugurated by the Diocese of Miami at Centro Hispano Catolico.

PRIEST-DELEGATES from Catholic Charities agencies in dioceses from every section of the country participated in sessions of the three-day National Resettlement Conference for Cuban Refugees organized to unite efforts to resettle and aid thousands of Cuban families.
The story of South Florida's Cuban refugees will soon be beamed by the Voice of America in a one-hour radio documentary to Cuba, Latin America and the rest of the world.

Included in the broadcasts, translated into 36 languages, will be interviews with refugees made at Centro Hispano Catolico, diocesan Spanish center, as well as comments in Spanish by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll, Sister Miriam, O.P., superior of the Dominican Sisters who staff the Centro and Father Byran O. Walsh, diocesan director of Catholic Charities and representative of the Resettlement Division of Catholic Relief Services N.C.W.C.

The Voice of America, which is a division of the U.S. Information Agency, sent crews to Miami from Washington early this month to talk with and to tape first-hand stories of hundreds of the Cuban refugees. The documentary also features the official reports of the special presidential committee on the refugee problem headed by Tracy E. Voorhees.

The VOA has some five million English listeners and 35 million who speak other languages throughout the world. Approximately one of one-hundred million listeners are in Latin America, where some 124 stations will rebroadcast the program. Since only an estimated 10 per cent of the radio sets in Cuba can receive short wave, it is planned to also use medium wave to Cuba.

There are six short wave frequencies on which Latin Americans can receive the programs 17,760 and 17,780 kilocycles on the 16-meter band; 15,720 and 15,345 kilocycles on the 19-meter band; 9,650 kilocycles on the 21-meter band and 6,175 kilocycles on the 48-meter band.

'Cops On The Beat' Praise Camillus As Crime-Stopper

Crime prevention wasn't the main reason for the founding of Camillus House in downtown Miami, but the shelter is helping to do just that.

Police who patrol the area report that petty crimes have decreased in Miami's Tenderloin district and they believe that Camillus House, with its policy of free meals twice daily and clothing for those who need it, has helped reduce the rate.

Informed of the fringe benefit which the city is deriving from the House at 706 NE First Ave., Brother David Keane, B.G.S., superior, observed that "one of the purposes of the Brothers of the Good Shepherd is, of course, crime prevention. That may be a bit different from crime prevention but not much different, I guess!"

Among the officers happy about the work done by Camillus House is John D. Moriarty, a radio patrolman and a four-year veteran in covering the streets frequented by men who regularly line up for meals at the shelter.

"An unemployed man who is hungry for long will rob to almost anything," said Officer Moriarty. He noted that a chief target of those in need are the parked automobiles of tourists, that contain luggage and other personal items. Parking meters, although they usually yield only a little money, are also broken into frequently.

"But these and other forms of petty larceny have decreased in our district lately," the policeman said. "Ordinarily in winter," he added, "we have just the opposite, an increase."

ABOUT 30 MEALS DAILY

The four Brothers of the Good Shepherd at Camillus House now serve about 500 meals daily. When the weather is cold, a Brother watches the men as they stand in line and whoever needs warmer clothing is told to help himself at three stacks of garments.

The Brothers recently distributed a total of 100 to families in need of emergency housing and gave another $45 in handouts to destitute individuals.

The Camillus program of "Charity Unlimited" was also cited as a crime deterrent by Patrolman Ward and Stuart Semoff, members of the police patrol which covers the area in three shifts, around the clock.

Patrolman Ward pointed out that "the neighborhood has increased in population in the past year but there is no indication of an increase in petty crime."

Bishop Issues New Warning Against Moral Re-Armament

MARQUETTE, Mich. (NC) — Bishop Thomas L. Noa of Marquette had told his people that Catholics are not to participate in the Moral Re-Armament movement.

In 1958, Bishop Noa issued an “instruction” and “directive” to his people stating that “until Holy Mother Church shall declare that it is safe to participate in the movement,” the faithful of his diocese cannot attend MRA meetings or take part in its activities.

Now, basing his statement upon “authoritative information” regarding action on the part of the Holy See, Bishop

Noa has informed his people that there is no change with regard to the attitude of the Church.” This attitude, he added, is that “Catholics are not to participate” in the MRA movement.

BISHOP’S PASTORAL

Recently full-page advertisements have appeared in many newspapers, creating the impression that the ideology of MRA and participation in this movement is approved for Cathdolics by Church authorities.

MacInnes Island, headquarters in this area of the world for the Moral Re-Armament movement, is within the confines of the Diocese of Marquette.

Bishop Noa’s pastoral letter declared:

“Last fall some Benedicts made top public appearances and

Assembly of Moral Re-Arm-ment in Caux, Switzerland.

These have been authoritative - ly informed that the Holy See has approved the presence of the two Swiss Benedictine

monks and the statements

they made at the Moral Re-

Armament World Assembly in

Caux, in September and October of 1960.

“The Holy See has disapproved the presence of the two Swiss Benedictine

monks and the statements

they made at the Moral Re-

Armament World Assembly in

Caux, in September and October of 1960.

While this doesn’t mean the)

Catholic can judge for himself that there is no change with regard to the attitude of the Church on Catholic participation in the Moral Re-Armament movement, it does mean that

Catholics are not to participate in the movement.”

Teen Can't Attend Dance--Is Dad Unfair?

I'm 13 and an eighth grader in a nearby school. Next month a Civic League dance is coming up. I'd like to go with my girlfriend very much, but, my father says no because there are age groups ranging from 13-17 years. I don't think this is fair considering I'm allowed to go to girl and boy parties and this dance will be well chaperoned. Don't you think I should be allowed to go?

By FATHER JOHN L. THOMAS, S.J.

I think you already know my answer, Maureen, but let's raise some interesting points that merit further comment. It's easy to understand how you feel about this dance. Others in your class are probably expecting to attend. You're not going on a date. The affair will be well managed and orderly. It's only held once a year. It will be "fun."

Of course it will be! All normal young people enjoy social events like parties or dances. There's a delightful sense of excitement and expectancy about dressing up and meeting new places where you will meet others. At your age, there's also some curiosity. What does it feel like to be on your own socially? To make new acquaintances? Will you be noticed? Dance with many different partners? It's something to look forward to -- it will be fun to talk about it afterwards. As the well-known TV show puts in, "You were there!"

But your father says you won't be there. What's wrong with him? Doesn't he want you to enjoy yourself? And besides, he's not very consistent. You can attend parties but not this dance. It just isn't fair.

Concerned For Real Happiness

That's the way you see the situation. Let's look at it from your father's viewpoint. You realize, of course, that his decision is not based on any desire to keep you from having fun. If he thinks it is necessary to forbid you to attend this dance, it's because he is concerned about your real happiness. Unlike many modern fathers he does not try to escape his obligations by limiting his role to earning the family income. That's a big job, indeed, but he also recognizes that God has entrusted him with your guidance and protection. Until you are a mature woman, capable of making sound decisions on the basis of Christian principles and considerable experience, he is responsible for you before God and society.

At this point you're probably thinking, "Sure, that's fine! But what does all this have to do with allowing me to attend just one single dance?" Well, let's look at the facts as your father sees them. You are now 13 and in eighth grade. In our society this means you are expected to attend a minimum of at least four more years of school and should not plan to marry for another seven years.

Meanwhile, the various changes you are now experiencing in your body and emotions clearly inform you that you are entering the final stage in your physical development as a woman. You are rapidly becoming biologically capable of procreation. The maturing of this power to beget life has important consequences for you.

Ceasing To Be A Child

Physically and emotionally you are ceasing to be a child. You stand at the threshold of a new world -- a going someplace where you will meet others. At your age, there's also some curiosity. What does it feel like to be on your own socially? To make new acquaintances? Will you be noticed? Dance with many different partners? It's something to look forward to -- it will be fun to talk about it afterwards. As the well-known TV show puts in, "You were there!"

Need For Vocations Here Outlined To St. Clare Club

NORTH PALM BEACH — The need for vocations to the priesthood, religious and religious life in the Diocese of Miami was recently outlined for members of St. Clare's Women's Club by Palm Beach Serra Club president, Frank Lewis.

Stating that fewer diocesan priests are being minister to the spiritual needs of some 350,000 Catholics in South Florida, Mr. Lewis urged parents to provide a home where vocations would be encouraged and nurtured.

He also suggested that families pray together for vocations.

No one except the priest can "call Christ to the altar during the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass," he said, "nor, other than a mortal, who can forgive one mortal sin or even a venial sin."

The main objectives of the Serra Club to foster vocations and assist in the education of young men for the priesthood; and the furthering of Catholicism through enduring friendship among Catholic men were also stressed by Mr. Lewis.

The Palm Beach Serra Club, he told members, sponsors a speaker's bureau whose members welcome the opportunity to address groups of men, women or high school students.

Busy Basketball Card Slated
For Diocese Squads Tonight

By JACK ROUGHTELING

A busy basketball card has been scheduled for the diocese's Catholic high schools tonight as all but Central Catholic of Fort Lauderdale see action.

Archbishop Curley High has the toughest call as the Knights, at the start of this week, meet a formidable Miami Jackson squad at the Jackson gym.

The Knights dropped a 91-49 count to the Generals last week despite a 17 point scoring effort from Carroll Williams and 13 from Bob Balman. The Generals outscored Curley from the free throw line with 24 charity tosses to Curley's 10.

TOP POINT MAKERS

Williams, a 5-10 sophomore, continues to rank among the county's scoring leaders with an average of 14.4 points a game.

St. Patrick's, headed by its pair of top point makers, Bill Dowling and Tom Blakeley, continue to rank among the county's scoring leaders with an average of 14.4 points a game.

Busy Basketball Card Slated For Diocese Squads Tonight

BY JACK BOULTING

A busy basketball card has been scheduled for the diocese's Catholic high schools tonight as all but Central Catholic of Fort Lauderdale see action.

Archbishop Curley High has the toughest call as the Knights, 3-7 at the start of this week, meet a formidable Miami Jackson squad at the Jackson gym.

The Knights dropped a 58-49 count to the Generals last week despite a 17 point scoring effort by Carroll Williams and 13 from Bob Baldwin. The Generals answered Curley from the free throw line with 24 charity tosses to Curley's 10.

TOP POINT MAKERS

Williams, a 5-10 sophomore, continues to rank among the county's scoring leaders with an average of 14.1 points a game.

St. Patrick's, headed by its pair of top point makers, Bill Dowling and Tom Blakeley, visit strong Riverside Military Academy in Hollywood.

Dowling, only a freshman, has averaged 13.6 points a game while Blakeley is hitting at a 14.4 average. Dowling recently hit for 39 points in a game while Blakeley's top is 25.

The Shamrocks don't have too strong a season record as the Class-C school has played its games mainly against the bigger Class A and A schools. However, by the time the district tournament rolls around, the Shamrocks should be in good shape to defend their Class C district title.

HOME GAME

Christopher Columbus High journeys down to Key West to meet a tall but disappointing Czech squad. Columbus racked up its first victory of the season last week as the Explorers downed Miami Military Academy 54-45 with Julio LeBlaanc getting 18 points and Tom North scoring 19. LeBlanc, who appears to have come out of his early season scoring slump, has averaged 15 points a game in recent contests.

Quedó así formado un Consejo de los Caballeros de Colón para hombres de habla hispana que se ha reunido en una reunión de 40 personas interesadas en la organización del mismo.

El Padre Bryan O. Walsh, Director de Caridades Católicas de la Diócesis de la Florida, ha celebrado el Día de los EE.UU.

Los refugiados cubanos que se encuentran en el sur de la Florida, han podido aprovechar en estos días, el gran interés que existe tanto en el Gobierno Federal como en los medios oficiales católicos de prestarles una ayuda eficaz.

Delegados de diferentes partes de los Estados Unidos se han reunido en estos días tanto como personalidades nacionales como los que se encontraban en el antiguo Embajador de los Estados Unidos en Cuba Mr. Philip C. Ross, el Obispo Edward Swanston, de New York, Director Ejecutivo del Servicio de Ayuda Católica, y Mr. Voorhees Representante personal del Presidente Eisenhower.

La masa de oradores de los diferentes lugares de los Estados Unidos que se desplazan a otros lugares de los Estados Unidos, que hacen una gran experiencia en tales materias y que por tanto tienen todas las garantías. "No es lo que se ha hecho—dijo el Sr. Voorhees—se le obligará a desplazarse y a tomar un trabajo. Esto es un país de libertad individual y miembros ustedes están aquí son libres". Señaló que después de haber estudiado el problema de los refugiados cubanos en el Sur de la Florida, se ha llegado a la conclusión que no hay suficientes empleos aquí para solucionar los problemas.

El Sr. Ross leyó una carta que el Presidente John F. Kennedy le había dirigido a Abraham Ribicoff, nuevo Secretario de Salubridad, Educación y Beneficencia quien asumirá su tarea relacionada con los refugiados cubanos a partir del primero de febrero. "Quiero hacerle patente mi interés y simpatía hacia aquellos que han sido obligados a abandonar sus hogares en Cuba—dice el Presidente—y asegurarles que trataremos de acelerar su voluntario retorno y asegurarles que tratarán de acelerar su voluntario retorno sin presuro como las condiciones lo permitan".

El Presidente Kennedy recuerda en su carta la tradición constante del pueblo de los Estados Unidos en ofrecer un santuario huésped a aquellos que han sido obligados a abandonar sus hogares en Cuba.

Las conversaciones fueron en ambos idiomas, inglés y español: El R. P. Ralph, pastor de San Miguel, y el P. R. F. Proctor, de San Miguel, hablaron del espíritu de los consejos de los Caballeros de Colón y de su lucha en contra del comunismo. Estaba también presente el P. J. Jullian Medrano, moderador de un comité que se ha encargado para organizar el consejo.

God Love You
Most Reverend

One wonders if there is not a little corner, as it were, of the devotion to the Sacred Heart that has not yet been revealed, even to St. Margaret Mary. It would be our guess that there is and that that yet undisclosed "corner" of the Sacred Heart is reserved for priests. If the world is to be turned from cold wars to peace, and if hearts are moved to love, it will become an increasing number of priests who will become more saintly and through them the world will be bettered. This seems to be the meaning of the revelations to Sister Louise Margaret as the Sacred Heart Family.

This new elite of saintly priests for whom the Sacred Heart has reserved a special revelation of His Incarnate and Eucharistic Love, will not carry candles to lighten a world but torches: "I am come to 'cast fire upon the earth." One can picture the army of the Sacred Heart. A sacrifice opens the heart to grace and pardon.

May we continue to find new enlistments in this priestly army of the Sacred Heart. A sacrifice opens the heart to grace and pardon.

The Week in Liturgy

Strange But True

By Father Robert W. Hoyda

Sunday, Feb. 5
Sexagesima Sunday. With eyes already focused on Easter, the Mass of the Sower, a story about the life that Easter promises. It is a gift of God, a grace, sown with man's cooperation, without that commitment and struggle to which Lent will invite the Christian community in earnest. Nor is the Mass content to teach about this life in general, in the abstract. It gives us a specific example, a model of loyalty and endurance, the apostle Paul.

Sunday, Feb. 6
St. Titus, Bishop and Confessor. A companion of Paul and, like him, a minister of Word and Sacraments. Titus is another illustration of the Sunday Gospel. For in the hierarchy, as in the Sower story, our Lord manifests Himself not as the warden of "a prison, whose job is to keep His charges in check, but as one who stays in the sacraments and in the message of the seed of divine life, whose work is to divinize human beings.

Tuesday, Feb. 7
St. Romuald, Abbot. The "founder" of the Sunday Gospel is echoed in the Gospel of this Mass, now as in the Sower story, our Lord manifests Himself not as the warden of a prison, whose job is to keep His charges in check, but as one who stays in the sacraments and in the message of the seed of divine life, whose work is to divinize human beings.

Wednesday, Feb. 8
St. John of Matha, Confessor. Founder of a 12th century order to ransom captives, to free the prisoners and displaced persons of that time, John points out to the Church a broader meaning of redemption. The freedom which Christ has won for mankind includes rather than supersedes all lesser freedoms, and the seed can grow only in ground tilled by Christians who are fully aware of man's natural needs and committed to their protection, and to their restoration.

Thursday, Feb. 9
St. Cyril, Bishop, Confessor and Doctor. The Sower works through human instruments, vessels of clay, as through this great fifth century teacher of Christ. There is good soil, the Church is saying, that has not been made fruitful because the Word, the seed, has not reached it through the Christian people.

Friday, Feb. 10
St. Scholastica, Virgin. St. Benedict's sister and matrarch of Benedictine sisters. Scholastica's vocation is an important part of the Christian tradition. It is one way of preparing the earth for the seed of the Gospel. Vocation is the most common thing in the Church of Christ. Everyone has it. And no one vocation, whether it be that of sister or brother, layman or priest, offers a built-in guarantee of salvation.

Saturday, Feb. 11
The Appearance of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This celebration of the Lourdes visions is a reminder to Christians that all history is sacred history, that history is in the hand of God. The world, then, for the Christian, is not simply a place of evil and suffering, a sort of appendage to the divine plan, but the sacred site of salvation, the arena of man's pilgrimage, the matter of which the coming kingdom will be fashioned.

George Beck Dies; Helped To Build First St. Mary’s

George F. Beck, a pioneer member of St. Mary Cathedral parish who helped to finance and construct the original church building of the parish, was buried following a Solemn Requiem Mass in the Cathedral on Jan. 30. He was 80.

In 1930 Mr. Beck headed a team of builders who put the original St. Mary Church on a site adjacent to the present rectory. The first Mass was offered there on July 28 of the same year.

Mr. Beck, a retired real estate salesman, moved to Miami 25 years ago from Buffalo, N.Y.

Mgr. Patrick J. O’Donoghue, pastor, was celebrant of the Mass. Father Joseph Borg, of St. Francis of Assisi Church, Riviera Beach, was deacon, and Father Joseph Cronin, of St. Peter X Church, Fort Lauderdale, was subdeacon.

The sermon was delivered by Mgr. William Barry, pastor of St. Patrick Church, Miami Beach.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Bernie; four daughters, Mrs. Veronica Bueno, Mrs. Lillian Catalano, and Mrs. Marie Motton; four sons, Elmer, James, Charles, and George, Jr.; and two brothers, Edward and Richard.

Interment was in Buffalo, N.Y. Edward McEachan and Sons Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Mrgr. Griffin Of Ohio Dies Here

Mrgr. Maurice F. Griffin, a Cleveland, Ohio pastor who died in Mercy Hospital, Miami on Jan. 30, was buried in Columbus, Ohio.

Archbishop Edward F. Hahn, president and auxiliary bishop, Bishop John J. Kroll delivered the sermon.

The 50-year-old priest was well known for his work in hospital advancement. He assisted in both the designing and fund raising of Mercy Hospital.

Mrgr. Griffin also helped organize the American Hospital Association and was the first to hold a high elective office in the organization. He was a senior trustee for 27 years.

The Requiem was offered in St. Francis of Assisi Church where Mrgr. Griffin had been pastor for 33 years. His body was visiting in Florida at the time of his death.

Should Dogma Be Changed To Fit Present Events?

to live with peace of mind in the midst of suffering and to make of it an asset.

The Church does not attempt to fill in every detail or solve every mystery. There remains considerable work for the intellect to do in pushing back the shadows. But the truths she has defined can never be changed nor withdrawn.

And the answers given by the Church are so firmly sup perted that even the most exacting mind can embrace them wholeheartedly without the fear or suspicion that further research will fail to join in the lumen, “How my mind has changed.”

Why are we so certain of that? Why are we sure we have the final, unchangeable answers on certain fundamental points? Because the Church gives us only what God has revealed. We believe nothing unless it is backed by the authority of God Himself. This alone assures certainty of mind.

Religion Doesn’t Rest On Feelings

each of these at least a potential member of Christ?

You are yourself an immortal Catholic Church — a temple where God can be found and adored, sought and savored. Some are inclined to seek God in their neighbor, while others prefer to find Him in themselves. These remember St. Paul’s words to the dock workers of the busy Port of Corinth: “Do you not know that you are the temple of God?”

So, ignore your feelings and be attentive to your Faith. Try to forget yourself and be attentive to your Faith. Help the Church build all its members.

He had first of all found His name on every mystery. There remains the most certain sign that you have lost your God in your very anxiety to find Him! For you would never seek Him anywhere if you had first of all found Him.

Don’t ever worry when you can’t seem to find God, but be prepared when you no longer seek Him.
