PROTESTANT CLERGY TOLD ABOUT VATICAN COUNCIL

Bishop Addresses Ministers

A better atmosphere and less tension between Christians of all faiths is the result of the Second Vatican Council, Bishop Coleman F. Carroll told more than 100 ministers during a meeting Monday of the Greater Miami Ministerial Association.

The prelate's address during a luncheon at Riverside Methodist Church hall marked the first occasion that a member of the Catholic hierarchy or clergy has ever appeared before a group of Protestant ministers in South Florida. In March Bishop Carroll spoke following the French prelate's expulsion from Haiti. The Archbishop was attired in a white cassock and carried only a passport.

Catholic Parents' Protest Packs Missouri Schools

ST. LOUIS (NC) — A "wildcat" protest by Catholic parents who removed their children from parochial schools and put them in public schools dramatized the deep feeling about school buses in Missouri.

The movement started as a protest to the killing by the Missouri House Judiciary Committee of a bill which would have permitted parochial and other private school pupils to ride tax-paid school buses.

As the news spread, Rep. James J. Russell appealed to the House to bring the school bus measure on the floor for a vote.

Church Principal Target

Of Terror Reign In Haiti

More refugees from still another storm center of turbulent Latin America poured into Miami this week as threats of revolution and invasion exploded in Haiti.

Father Kenneth M. Chappell, Bishop Carroll's successor as Bishop of Miami, told a member of the Church's primary target and principal victim.

First of the Bishop to be expelled was Archbishop Francois Poirier, of Port-au-Prince. On Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24, 1960, the French-born prelate was seized without warning as he sat in his study by uniformed gendarmes and secret police. He was placed immediately aboard a plane for Miami with no personal effects and no money except a $1 bill surreptitiously given him by a priest.

Wearing his white robe and purple sash, Archbishop Poirier was greeted at Miami International Airport by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll. He was the guest of Bishop Carroll until his return to his native France, where he was informed by the Vatican that Pope John XXIII was "deeply grieved by the violation of the holy rights of the Church" and that the Holy Father had raised "reverent prayers to the Lord for the beloved people of Haiti."

While in Miami he made a formal statement to press, radio and television reporters in which he branded as "absolutely false and utterly without foundation" a trumped-up charge made against him by the archbishop.

The former Prime Minister of Peru, Pedro G. Beltran, who was the convention's principal speaker, said that Cuba is "an ideal center of operation for the subversion of Latin America, and that the Soviets intend to retain their hold on it."

Archbishop Joseph Meionier of San Francisco, Episcopal Chairman of the NCWC Press Dept., gave the keynote address during the opening luncheon where Bishop Carroll welcomed delegates to the three-day sessions and outlined the problems of Miami's Cuban refugees.

Four Cuban exiles now in Miami participated in a panel discussion held at Riverside Methodist Church hall. The occasion was the first time a Catholic clergyman had addressed ministers in this area, and Bishop Carroll's remarks brought a round of applause.

Editors Told Of Red Threat

To Latin American Nations

The rapidly increasing communist threat to nations of the Americas was the major church struck at the second annual Catholic Press Association convention attended by more than 400 delegates from Catholic newspapers and magazines in the United States and Canada.

Bishop Coleman F. Carroll and the staff of The Voice were hosts to the convention held at the Hotel American, Bal Harbor, where several speakers and experts in Latin American affairs warned against the Red menace in Cuba and others cited the importance of inter-American cooperation based on friendship and understanding.

Although the theme of the convention was on Latin America, there was also an evaluation of press performance at the first session of the Second Vatican Council and a look toward the council's upcoming session in September.

The former Prime Minister of Peru, Pedro G. Beltran, who was the convention's principal speaker, said that Cuba is "an ideal center of operation for the subversion of Latin America, and that the Soviets intend to retain their hold on it."

things we agree upon," the Bishop said. "But before we do that it is important that we each understand whether the other believes. Perhaps by honest, sincere discussion and study we may find out there is not nearly as much disagreement as we thought. "I think we're on the right track," Bishop Carroll continues. "But neither one will make any advances in this field by waltering down the doctrine of his belief. But if you understand what I believe and I understand what you believe, then we can sit down and study and pray about those things where we disagree. "With that approach and with prayer on the part of everyone anything could happen," Bishop Carroll predicted as the ministers applauded enthusiastically.

During his talk on the far reaching effects of the first sessions of the Council, Bishop Carroll pointed out that 11 Episcopal ministers from the Fort Lauderdale and Pompano Beach area had participated in a three-day spiritual retreat last week at Our Lady of Florida Monastery and Retreat House conducted in North Palm Beach by the Passionist Fathers.

Bishop Carroll said he was "impressed with the sincerity and genuine interest" on the part of the 25 ministers representing six denominations who were guests of honor at a dinner at the retreat house.

proposed legislation. The motion by Wright was approved by a shouted voice vote which avoided any record of the balloting.

In the meantime, Clarence J. Blume, chairman of the rural Cole County Catholic Parent Committee which launched the protest, appealed to parents to stop. He noted that Fire Department authorities in one town closed the local public school because of overcrowding.

Two Missouri Bishops commented on the demonstrations, both professing no advance knowledge of the protest plan.

Bishop Joseph F. Marling, C.P., of Jefferson City appealed to the parents to "desist immediately" and express their opinions at the polls. Bishop Charles Helmsing, of Kansas City-St. Joseph, defending the legality of school bus rides for parochial pupils, asked legislators "to give an honest hearing to the pleas of so many citizens.

The action was taken by the parents on their own initiative, apparently without consultation with Catholic Church or school officials. Hundreds of children were removed from parochial schools, enrolled in already crowded public schools and rode the public school buses.

Robert Wheeler, State Commissioner of Education, said if the protest continued across the state and the parochial school children continued in public schools next September, it would cost Missouri a minimum of $66,500,000 to accommodate them. Groups of parents said they will continue to send their children to the public schools in September.

A spokesman for the Missouri public school system said if the state's 172,000 parochial school students were turned into the public school system, the move could cause "financial disaster."

MOVEMENT

Less than 12 hours after the House committee action, the movement apparently began in Centertown. It spread to Washington, St. Martin, Union, Kran- kow, Glandale, St. Clair, Eru- reka, Baldwin, Festus, Festus, High Ridge, House Springs, Crystal City, Valley Park, Gray Summit, Sullivan, Hot Springs, Arnold, Kimmswick, Pacific, Os- gate, Bend, Vienna, and Hick- man Mills, all of which are small farming communities.

The movement was confined to the rural areas. There were no such incidents reported in St. Louis, Kansas City and other urban areas.

According to Father Cyril Schweinberg, C.P., retreat di- rector, the 11 Episcopal ministers conducted their own private exercises and devotions but assisted at Mass each morning and answered the responses in the retreat house chapel.

A general retreat is being planned for January at the retreat house to which all Protestants clergymen in South Flor- ida will be invited.

selected from a field of 10,000 contestants, six boys and six girls received from Bishop Coleman F. Carroll Tuesday their awards as first prize winners in the annual Vocation Essay Contest sponsored by the four Serra clubs of the Diocese of Miami.

Present for the occasion were parents of the boys and girls; principals or teachers of schools they attended and, in the case of the Serra clubs, including diocesan director of vocations.

The highlight of Serra activities throughout the year, the contest was the most successful ever conducted in the Diocese.

There were at least 10,000 essays written by pupils in all Catholic schools throughout the year, the contest was the most successful ever conducted in the Diocese.

As a result, Bishop Carroll pointed out, the contest was responsible for the subject of vocations being the focus of attention and discussion by 20,000 to 40,000 men, women and children in homes throughout the Diocese.

"A vocation is a gift of God," the Bishop declared, "and God grants many such gifts. The difficulty, however, is that many do not recognize the call or, in some cases, refuse to hear it."

Parents, he said, have the duty of providing truly Christian homes and when a child discusses the matter of a vocation, mothers and fathers should not be selfish and voice opposition by saying that a child is "too young."

"The Church knows the acceptable time for the flowering of a vocation," Bishop Carroll added as he called for prayers of a vocation, mothers and fathers should not be selfish and voice opposition by saying that a child is "too young."

Calling attention to Cuba, where there are about 350 priests left, the Bishop said that "the enemies of the Church look if they get rid of the Bishops and the priests, the Church will eventually disappear."

Serra men who met with chairman George McKeever to determine the final winners in each division were Frank Russell, Broward Serra Club; Joe Egan, Indian River club; Stan Petro, Miami, and Richard Me Cord, Palm Beach.

The prize-winners were presented with medals and each school they represented was given an engraved plaque. The winners were:

Despite Election Gains By Communists

Christian Democratic Party Retains Lead In Italy Voting

ROME (NC) -- Most anti-communists here have expressed considerable alarm over the Communist party’s gains in Italy’s first national elections in five years.

But the Vatican City daily, L’Osservatore Romano, pointed out that the Catholic-oriented Christian Democratic party retained the country’s largest bloc and declared that it “remains the irreplacable pivot of democratic security after the difficult test.”

While the communist daily, L’Unita, cried “victory” in front page headlines, newspaper reports which had once opposed the Christian Democratic party’s “opening to the left” alliance with the Marxist Socialist party shouted: “I told you so!”

They criticized U.S. President John F. Kennedy for what they (and Italian Communist party chief Palmiro Togliatti) call his supportive attitude toward center-left governments. Pope John XXIII’s reception of Premier Antonio Segni, Italian newsman who is the son-in-law of Premier Nitha Khurshid, also came in for criticism.

The Italian Socialist party lost slightly, dropping from 14.3 per cent of the vote in 1958 to 13.8 per cent in this election.

The two-day election gave the Christian Democrats 20.3 per cent of the vote, one percentage point less than the 24.2 per cent they polled in 1958.

The Italian Communist party pulled more than 25 per cent for the first time with 26.3 per cent.

In the Chamber of Deputies, Christian Democrats won 266 seats (41.3 per cent). The total number of deputies increased from 196 to 638 because of a five year, 15 per cent increase in voting population. The Italian Communist party won 96 seats (16.2 per cent); the Italian Socialist party won 82 seats (9.8 per cent); the Italian Liberal party with 7 per cent of the vote (double its 3555 percentage), won 59 seats (16.2 per cent).

L’Osservatore Romano’s editor, Emanuele Mancini, pointed out that the Christian Democratic party retained a relative majority. He said: “The fact that Christian Democracy retained its role as the government party although its margin may have decreased and foreseeable difficulties have increased, is something which...compensates for a situation that has not been clarified or improved in other respects,” he said.

“Once again, the Catholic electorate has given a proof of unity, of understanding, of love of country amid economic difficulties, and of confidence in forces which, for past 17 years, have led the country along the road of progress.”

(REPRINTED From Page 1) Democratic opponents of the church are diurnally opposed to the doctrine and teaching of the Church.

The last prelate to be ousted was French-born Bishop Paul Robert of Les Gonaives, who was expelled last November. He was said to have reasons for Duvalier’s anti-Church drive is the regime’s desire to end Catholic opposition to the widespread pagan cult of voodoo.

Most recent anti-Church incident in Haiti was the done of a priest in the Saint-Marc in March. The church’s tabernacle was broken into and his stolen vestments were strewn about the floor.

The current crisis stems from President Duvalier’s attempt to end Catholic opposition to the widespread pagan cult of voodoo.

The U. S. regards Duvalier’s government as corrupt and inefficient, and in 1962 suspended economic aid to the nation after giving it close to $100 million since 1946.

As his constitutional term neared an end, political unrest grew in the capital. President Duvalier stepped up the nation’s anti-private militia — the so-called Tonton Macoutes (tontons) — to crack down on all opponents. Some members of the opposition sought asylum in foreign embassies in the Haitian capital of Port-au-Prince, including the embassy of the Dominican Republic.

The CCD convention, held by the National CCD, had attracted more than 80 Diocesan directors, representing 17,298 parishes in the country. The directors estimated that there are about 8,000 U.S. priests who are attending CCD classes and that about 25% of the curriculum in religious education is used by the Catholic schools.

During the CCD convention, Bishop Charles P. Greco, chairman of the U.S. Bishops’ Committee for the CCD, told the directors that there are now more than eight million Catholic children in public schools as compared to about five and one-half million in Catholic schools.

Catechetical centers are a new development in the Church. At present, they total 81 in 16 dioceses, the convention was told by Father Albert Schnacky, CCD director in the Rochester, N.Y., diocese where 26 of the centers are located.

Teachers at such centers are generally lay people, Father Schnacky said, the children attending classes receive between 1½ hours to 2 hours a week of instruction.

Among those attending a convention of Catechist Federation of Christian Doctrine directors from dioceses throughout the country recently at the Fontainebleau Hotel were, from left, Father Joseph Brunner, diocesan CCD director; Father John Burton, diocesan director from Pittsburgh; Msgr. R. E. Philibin, of St. Michael Church, CCD director for the Diocese of Miami; Bishop Charles P. In Federal Aid, Lippman Says

NEW YORK (NC) — Walter Lippman says he rates the crisis facing American education serious enough to warrant inclusion of parochial schools in Federal aid to education.

The nationally syndicated columnist said during his fourth annual television appearance (CBS - TV’s “CBS Report”) that it was “not beyond the wit of man” to resolve the religious issue in Federal aid for church-related schools.

Lippman said Federal aid to education is necessary and should not be delayed. He said the proposal is presently stalled in Congress by controversy over aid to parochial schools which “has got to be resolved.”

Asked how it can be resolved, he replied: “It is not beyond the wit of man, if he means it, for us to find a way of aiding education, whether it is in public schools or parochial schools, without getting involved in the question of the teaching of religion.”

He said “concessions” should be made to parochial schools, and he replied in the affirmative and explained:

“We have to remember that we have laws in this country that every child must be educated, so we take that responsibility.

“We allow five million of them or thereabouts — I think that’s the figure — to be educated in these parochial schools. They are part of the American system of education. Otherwise, why do we allow them to be educated in these schools?”

CCD Directors Back Catechetical Centers

In a resolution adopted at their recent Miami Beach convention and released in Washington by the National CCD Convention, the directors said that while it is the ideal that every Catholic child attend a parochial school, “this is unrealistic in the foreseeable future.”

Catechetical centers can be turned into full-fledged parochial schools when such a transition is possible, the group said.

EDITOR'S COMMENT

C3A Brings Sharper Focus On Crisis In Latin America

When Catholic editors and writers assembled in Miami last week for their annual conference, from the beginning it was obvious the spotlight was to be focused on Latin America. Those who had not been to Miami in recent years were amazed to see at firsthand the evidence of the presence of more than 100,000 refugees and to see none of the enormous public service rendered by the Diocese in caring for them.

Catholic officials who have been closest to what is called "the Latin American problem" issued frank reports on the results of the intensive campaign in the last few years and refused to gloss over difficulties and weaknesses standing in the way of rapid victories over the enemies of ignorance, poverty and social injustice, to say nothing of the ever-increasing menace of communism.

When it was all sifted and analyzed, it became apparent that the Church in Latin America is in a short time has taken some encouraging steps forward. Father John Costantine, director of the Latin American Bureau, calls it a "Catholic comeback." In eight years, 88 new dioceses have been erected to enable bishops to be in closer contact with their people. In Peru a new Catholic Bureau of Information is having remarkable success in informing the public on vital truths and issues, correcting false notions which have hurt the Church in the past and above all in training competent men to staff other bureaus in all territories where they are needed.

The Catholic Press Association of the United States has given press service in its studies of mass communications in Latin America, studies which are being used now as the basis for strengthening Catholic leadership and as a means of reaching the people through the press, television and radio. It is still true of course that most of us do not yet appreciate the enormous importance of our own individual responsibility in trying to understand and cooperate in the solution of those problems which affect the whole hemisphere. Highlighting the problems and suggesting the remedies, such as happened at the Catholic Engineering, Agricultural and Social Experts (SI-ECA) which held its fifth congress in Barcelona. The letter was sent in the name of Pope John XXIII by Anselma Cardinal Ciocagni, Papal Secretary to him, to Juan Bonelli, president of the Papal Secretary of State, to the World Council of Churches. He paid generous tribute to the Holy Father and to the bishops whom he lauded for their "giant sacrifice for the Gospel and for their magnificent human qualities of heart and mind.

In the question period that followed, a spectator in the audience and present in St. Peter's for the Council. He stepped out of the past. The Church is very much aware of the problems and injustice, to say nothing of the ever-increasing menace of communism and the substantial help the Church has already been able to give to the Church in Latin America in a short time has taken the Church in Latin America.

A Principle — 1879 Or 1963

In Connecticut, as you read in the daily papers, there is a battle going on in the legislature whether or not to repeal statutes which ban the practice of artificial birth control. The Church did not put the statute banning birth control in its statutes which are being used now as the basis for strengthening Catholic leadership and as a means of reaching the people through the press, television and radio. It is still true of course that most of us do not yet appreciate the enormous importance of our own individual responsibility in trying to understand and cooperate in the solution of those problems which affect the whole hemisphere. Emotional Instability Can Harm Your Faith
By FATHER LEO J. TRESE

Loss of faith may result from intellectual pride or from habitual sin. There is another potential danger to faith which may arise from the emotions rather than from the intellect or the senses.

This is the danger inherent in the person who, in childhood, has had an unsatisfactory relationship with his father. Father Trese says: "A child who is cold and rigid in his father's sight, for whom the father is a model of unbalanced character, a child almost certainly will develop a feeling of hostility towards his father.

In instances the child is afraid to admit this feeling into the realm of conscious emotion. He represses it into the subconscious mind and on the conscious level assumes it is not there, inventing himself, that he loves his father. However, repression does not eliminate. The buried hostility still exists and exerts strong pressure upon the emotions.

Unfortunately, in later life this hostility is likely to be repressed towards anyone whom the individual feels he does not deserve love. But this is the beginning of a new kind of repressed resentment against himself. He may be tempted to transfer his resentment to God the Father. The danger is more acute if God's law is a barrier to something which this individual wishes to do.

The person may hesitate to rebel directly against God. However, when he is in a less advantageous set of circumstances he may, by implication, act against God. He may, for instance, deliberately have intercourse outside marriage. The priest will then be faced with a difficult situation since the priest is powerless to act against the second party.

The rebel still may abandon himself to sin and whatever the reasons, he will find it extremely difficult to establish a comfortable relationship with his pastor.

He will be hypercritical of the pastor and resistant to the pastor's requests and directives. Unless the priest possesses exceptional tact, the day may come when the parishioner quarrels openly with his pastor, then crowns his rebellion by staying away from church.

There is hardly a parish in the land which does not have at least one man who is an ex-Catholic because he has a conflict with the pastor. Sometimes there is no overt quarrel, but the relationship is so cold that there is no personal contact.

The rebel still may abandon himself to sin and whatever the reasons, he will find it extremely difficult to establish a comfortable relationship with his pastor.

The rebel still may abandon himself to sin and whatever the reasons, he will find it extremely difficult to establish a comfortable relationship with his pastor.

This does not mean that just because we feel a stirring of anger or resentment against a particular priest, we therefore are suffering from an acute emotional problem. We have been genuinely hurt by a priest.

Profiting by progress in the science of psychology, seminaries make a scrupulous effort to spot any sign of emotional instability in candidates for the priesthood. Good personal adjustment and a fair degree of prudence are high on the list of requisites for a priestly vocation.

However, no screening processes are foolproof. Occasionally a man of unbalanced character may pass the examination. Even if this were not so, we priests are human. We have our faults, we make our share of mistakes, and in such a surprising if we sometimes do something which is offensive to a parishioner.

BASICALLY STRONG

Faults aside, there still may be clashes of personality. It sometimes happens that two individuals, each a fine person in his own right, will find themselves quite incompatible and each will feel that the other is not the person he would like to be. If our faith is basically strong, we do not allow our resentments, whatever their source, to carry us away from God. We do not "punish" God because we are tempted to be angry at him. We carry our resentment to our pastor because he reminds us, obscurely, of our own father. The solution is to go to charity by, for instance, discussing the disagreement with our pastor. If we do not, the person who has offended us: we pray for him and remember the command of love and mercy.

In the meantime we happily continue to fulfill our religious duties. We know that one priest is not the Church; much less is he God.

Two other unbaptized non-Catholics, when they are married by a minister or a justice of the peace, are also validly married, provided again there is no other impediment.

However, since they are unbaptized, they have no benefit from the sacrament of matrimony. They enter into a natural contract, which is held to be binding by God and binds them.

Therefore, we can never say that just because a non-Catholic was not married before a priest, the Church rejects his marriage. It is true that a baptized Protestant after a valid marriage may get a divorce and seek to marry a Catholic, but the Church is confident that it can be done in the Church, "because he was not married the first time by a priest."

His first marriage, either before a judge or a minister, could be valid as a marriage between two Catholics in the Church.

We do a disservice by giving rash advice on marriage problems sometimes. We cannot recognize that a particular marriage case is "exactly like one I know of."

But usually the lay person will not be if it is not. Even our economy is not insignificant detail, which can be brought out only by the experienced person in the field. In other words, change the whole case.

The amateurs in Canon Law are not in favor of the experts.

What Will Life Be Like in 25 to 150 Years?
By Msgr. GEORGE G. HIGGINS

What will our lives and our institutions be like in 25, 50, 100 years from now?

Sociologist Ferdinand Lundberg of New York University says that society is held enough to try to answer this. All of the traditional religions, he says, "may be expected to be long in dying as their practical role diminishes under the erosion of new techniques and insights and the emerging of new types of personalities."

SENSE OF HUMOR?

Sir Charles Darwin, of all people, has said all that needs to be said about this pejorative term. He pointed out: "... provide Catholics with a great field in which they may meet and come to an understanding of the inexhaustible faith in Christians who, while I am convinced to be, and also with human beings who are not enlightened by faith or by Jesus Christ, who are endowed with the light of reason and with a natural and spiritual sense.

Cardinal Tells Archbishop Hallinan:

Church Meeting In Russia

ROME (NC) — The cardinal who is the key figure in question concerning the Church's public worship believes that the ecumenical council's coming declaration on the liturgy will draw Catholics and other Christians closer together.

Cardinal Larraona, C.M.F., revealed on Tuesday what action by the council's rule of the liturgical renewal would be far more impressive than the document which was most impressive. Pope John XXIII is convinced that liturgical discussions will produce the pastoral renewal. Cardinal Larraona is a member of the Coordinating Commission preparing for the council's second session, said that the council has already done great things for the Church and that much more good is still to come.

Sons Of Church More United Than Ever, Pope John Says

VATICAN CITY (NC): Pope John XIII said at his first general audience of May that the sons of the Church throughout the world are more united than ever.

While thousands of Vatican communists took part in a May Day demonstration across town in front of St. John Lateran basilica, Pope John said thousands gathered in St. Peter's basilica here (May 1) that the world recognizes that "the Church is in the service of mankind."

Among those present were: Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta, Ga.; Bishop Charles P. Grenos of Alexandria, Ia.; and Bishop Joaquín Arrieta of Silheten, Yugoslavia.

The Pope said that while the Church's own different degrees of civilization and social organization, "they feel they are required by the sacred hierarchy to give a testimony of faithfulness to the heritage of Divine Revelation that is as old as 2,000 years."

Cardinal Larraona also volunteered some information as to the present situation of the liturgical Commission. He also quoted Father Frederick McMannus, canon law professor at the Catholic University of America and former chaplain of the North American Liturgical Conference. As a papally appointed select committee Father McMannus is an advisor to the Liturgical Commission.

The cardinal was called "one of the most esteemed" of the experts, and said that his "opinions are decisive, far-sighted and respected."

DEcisive Choice

He quoted the priest's analysis of the council's liturgical accomplishments as follows:

"At the first session of the council, the bishops made a decisive choice, to begin the needed liturgical changes, so that Catholic worship may be universal in Catholic worshippers.

"The guidelines of the reform were voted almost unanimously — and with a great deal of reading from the Bible at Mass, simpler and clearer services, removal of language of the people.

"At the council's September meeting, bishops can quickly determine the major changes to be authorized. Then, with the complete support of the bishops for the liturgical renewal of St. Pius X, Pius XII and John XXIII assured, it should be a comparatively easy task to rewrite the Missal, Breviary and Ritual for the sake of greater popular participation of the worship.

On his own, Archbishop Hallinan outlined the scope of this session of the Liturgical Commission. The chief point being considered, he indicated, are the formulation of the species by the faithful, and consecration of the Mass by more than one priest at the same time — both for special occasions; certain changes in emphasis and definition in the Sacraments; the pastoral stress on the Brevia; the extent of the inclusion of the people in the Mass, the sacraments and the Divine Office; and the restoration of the central mysteries of Christ's life in the liturgical year.

LONDON (NC) — An international group of churchmen meeting near Moscow has voiced "gratitude" for the new papal encyclical, Peace on Earth.

Church Council Meets in Russia

'Thankful' For Encyclical

"The conference's expression in their communique that they 'wish with gratitude the position and pronouncements of the head of the Roman Catholic Church, Pope John XIII, particularly a number of his statements on the problems of the Council's action on the liturgy, in the Russian Federation of the World Conference of Christians, which is composed of Anglican, Roman, and Eastern Orthodox Churches, among other denominations, as a means by which the Council's action on the liturgy will be of the Church and the faithful, and concelebration of the Mass by more than one priest at the same time — both for special occasions; certain changes in emphasis and definition in the Sacraments; the pastoral stress on the Brevia; the extent of the inclusion of the people in the Mass, the sacraments and the Divine Office; and the restoration of the central mysteries of Christ's life in the liturgical year.

Two Cardinals hold important posts in the Second Vatican Council. Professor of the Sacred Liturgy and head of the external affairs department of the Russian Orthodox Church, Primate of Finland, and one of the most famous in Russia, was made a museum during the Stalinist era.
THREAT TO LATIN AMERICA

We agree that social and political instability in America can be directly linked to the phenomenon of communalism, in Latin America, states directly from Fidel Castro's Cuba.

The danger that all of Latin America will fall under the influence of Cuba, he said, is "very high." Msgr. William J. Quinn stated that "the Cuban example" is considered only as a political phenomenon, but that the church could be tempted to get a foothold in the Latin American sphere of the "radical Chinese current."

"The Russian in their drive to divide the American family." Referring to Marxist aggression against the Western hemispheric nations, Beltran declared that Communists for many years attempted to get a foothold in the Americans, and that now that they are in Cuba, they are about to stay there. The Peruvian leader called Cuba an ideal center for Latin American Communism, far more useful for training Communist agents than Russia because of language, climate and culture. Latin American Communists feel at home.

STAND UNITED
"Our American family must stand united," Beltran urged. Then in a veiled reference to unilateral action on the part of the United States in the Cuban crisis, he said: "As in any family, the individual members should not act merely for their own self interest, if, in the end, they cause a family wherein each member must work, the other cornerstones for our Americas! The essence of trust is never to approach a vital problem from only one point of view or to try to resolve a common crisis alone."

Beltran called for a great understanding between the peoples of the Americas. He said that North American look back to Europe and only pay attention to the nations of Latin America when there is some sensational news. He asked an end of looking at Latin America as a conglomeration of quaint people who somehow managed to get from Spain and mingle with the indigenous population.

Kennedy's State Visit To Rome Expected Now In Early 1964

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Kennedy are expected to visit Rome on a state visit to Italy early next year.

The President and the First Lady had been scheduled to go to Rome on a state visit in June of this year, but it was thought likely that Mr. Kennedy would have an audience with Pope John XXIII.

However, the state visit has been postponed because Mrs. Kennedy is expecting her third child in August and would not be able to accompany the President at this time.

Instead, President Kennedy will go to Milan in June and meet there with the Italian Premier. His present plans do not call for him to go to Rome or meet with Pope John XXIII.

The President will also visit Germany and Ireland in June.

Council Ranks With Best, Says NCW Council Chief

PHILADELPHIA (ABC) — The achievements of the Second Vatican Council already rank it as one of the "great councils" in Church history, a leading figure in press coverage of the council said here.

This assessment was made by Msgr. James I. Tucek, head of the Rome Bureau of the NCWC News Service and director of the English-language section of the Vatican press relations office established for the council.

Msgr. Tucek spoke at a dinner held recently at Villanova University's St. Augustine Award, given annually for outstanding achievement in the communications arts.

He offered two examples to justify placing the Second Vatican Council among the great councils of history:

The Best Front Page award was the third won by The Voice since publication began in the Spring of 1958. In the 1960 CPA competition, The Voice was cited for the Best News Photograph; and in 1961 received an award for the Best Editorial.

John J. Ward, editor of The Voice, accepted the award from Auxiliary Bishop Phillip M. Hannan of Washington, D.C., Assistant Episcopal Chairman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference Press Department, during the awards luncheon in the hallroom of the Hotel Americans.

In a summary critique of entries for the Best Front Page in the 60,001 and over circulation group, the judges cited the Nov. 30, 1962, issue of The Voice.

"The winner impressed the judges with its effective use of art," the critique said, "the best in any category under judgment. Layouts were particularly effective and showed both care and imagination. The pages are very readable. There is an effort to convey highlights to the use of one family of type, with which the judges are in agreement. Printing is clean, pictures well cropped, and layout is easy on the eyes. Color is used with care and taste."

Press Leaks Aided Council, Protestant Editor Tells CPA

MIAMI BEACH (NC) — A Protestant editorial said here that the Second Vatican Council "benefited from leaks" made to the press.

Dr. Harold E. Fey, editor of the Christian Century magazine of Chicago, said that despite traditional Vatican caution regarding the press the public got a fairly accurate picture of the council.

He stated that "the council and the Catholic Church as a whole stand to gain a great deal more than they will lose if they put into effect the words spoken by Pope John XXIII in his Sine-Tonech chapel address to the journalists.""

TRUE MOTIVES

Dr. Fey told journalists then that the Church "has nothing to hide" and that they would "be able to see and report the true motives which inspire the Church's action in the world," Dr. Fey said.

The religious editor of the Miami Herald deplored "the lack of most" in stories emanating from the council, particularly at the beginning of the council and four to five months prior to its opening.

Outstanding CYO’ers To Get Eagle Of The Cross Award

The Diocesan CYO office in the chancery is now accepting recommendations for the Eagle of the Cross award for outstanding CYO’ers. CYO moderators and advisers are asked to submit the names of one or two members whom they consider deserving of special recognition for their efforts to improve their parish CYO during the past year.

The Eagle of the Cross award is made possible through the combined efforts of the Diocesan Youth Department in conjunction with the National CYO Office in Washington, D.C.

Father Walter J. Dockery, director of youth activities in the diocese, said the award was established for three purposes:

1. To cultivate in Catholic youth an appreciation of their faith, and an enduring desire for personal moral integrity.

2. To encourage in youth a zeal for prayer and good works so that by this apostolic activity others may be led to Christ and His Church.

3. To foster and develop leadership in our youth, enabling them to accept willingly and to discharge courageously their responsibilities in the service of God, country and fellow man.

Fort Pierce Notes: ‘Law Day’

By CATHARINE HOOD

FORT PIERCE — An assembly was held in observance of Law Day U.S.A. on May 1 at Central Catholic High School. Diane Nagy, president of the National Honor Society, introduced Mayor L. A. O’Reilly, the guest speaker. The mayor pointed out that our present day laws are based on the Ten Commandments and that all laws are God’s rules.

“Everyone should and must obey laws,” he said. “If every- one obeys a certain traffic law with the exception of one per- son, then they are all in danger until he decides to obey the laws. Students especially should come to realize the importance of laws,” he said.

Robert Tuerk presented an application on St. Joseph the worker. He called St. Joseph an excellent example of a man of obedience and observance of the laws.

Gibbons in Crowning Rite

FORT LAUDERDALE — The traditional ceremony of crowning Our Lady of Good Counsel was carried on at Cardinal Gibbons today. Hymns were sung and prayers recited as the student body received their dedication to their Heavenly Mother at the outdoor rite.

Our talented students once again have an opportunity to display their gifts in the Student Council’s annual Talent Show. The student body saw the performance for the first time on Monday. Tonight at 7:30 there will be a second performance for parents and the public in the school’s Assembly Hall.

Brother James, who taught at Curley until last year, has already commenced in his work toward a Master’s Arts Degree. He received this degree last August from the University of Notre Dame.

Two more Curley seniors have been awarded scholarships. Edward Barimo has attended the University of Miami while Richard Milkie has received a grant from Biscayne College.

LaSalle Reads for ‘The Mouse’

By ROBERT KOZIOL

During the past four weeks during recess periods, a new book has been carried on by the combined dramatic forces of La Salle and Immaculata to put everything in readiness for the up-coming presentation of ‘The Mouse That Roared’.

The various actors of drama, staging and lighting have been constantly improved upon under the supervision of Carol Miklic, who has been working on a degree in mathematics.

The鼠ious two-act com- edy concerns the futile at- tempts of the obscure Europe- an duchy of Grand Frenck to gain economic prosperity by securing American laws; the results of their wild venture make for a riot- ous evening of entertainment.

The leading role of Tully Bar- nack, played by Robert Byrd, is per- formed by Sister Mary Carla, O.P. Gail Lane singing “If you want to—” and Gregory Upp, both will be seniors in the Fall.

Other officers on the Girls’ Student Council will be Man- ree Fox, vice president; Sue Peterson, secretary; Elizabeth Dun- ne Weber, treasurer. In the boys’ building Bob Mack will be vice president; Dick Olt, secretary; and Charlie Zappie, treasurer.

To honor these newly-elected officers the freshman boys’ class will sponsor a dance May 11 in the Student Council’s second annual Talent Show. The student body and refreshments will be provided; the donation is $1.

The Convent of the Sacred Heart is pleased to announce that the newly-elected student council officers were chosen by the senior boys headed by Tim Ashby in a dramatization of ‘Casey at the Bat; a group for their representatives before the vacation and at this as- sembly, Reverend Mother Barry conferred the Blue Ribbons of honor on Susan Bradley, Kathleen Cahill, Carole Heide, and Leanne Suits.

The ceremony closed with the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The focal point of the Pro- cession was the Crown- ing ceremony. May Queen, Patri- ci Ono, crowned her predecessor, Maria Cianci, as student direc- tor.

The play will be presented at 10 a.m., 12, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria on the censer. Although the crown may be purchased through any of the students, the crown, which is part of the participation in the ceremony, will also be avail- able at the door both evenings.

Considering the hard work and long hours put in by both stu- dent bodies, this year’s play should be one of great interest and enjoyment.

Fort Myers — Tuesday night the Central Catholic Quiz Team was all set to capture first place honors in the Junior High Quiz Bowl. However, just as they were to go on the air they were informed that because of faulty mechanicals the game had been called off and that the three top teams would each receive first prize. Each quiz kid was given a check for $15 and the school was given a check for its library fund. The other two schools receiving similar amounts were Fort Myers Junior-Senior High and Lee High.

Central Catholic was proud to be among the "big three" especially since other schools in the locality had much larger student bodies from which to draw contestants.

SS. Peter and Paul blanked St. Lawrence 10-0 for its second straight win to climb to the top of the heap with Blessed Trinity and St. Dominic in the Dade County CYO Softball League this week.

Jerry Survada and Freddy Ori led an eight-hit attack in the sixth inning to put the game out a win over St. Timothy 15-5.

In its opening game of the season SS. Peter and Paul had romped over St. Timothy 15-5 this week.

St. Dominic won its first game over St. Brendan on a forfeit, came from behind with four big runs in the last of the seventh to give Blessed Trinity the victory.

In other games played last Sunday St. Dominic took St. Mary's measure 13-3 with Bob Bogio, Phil Trembley and Manny Martinez leading the attack at bat for the winners and St. Vincent de Paul squeezed by Corpus Christi 7-4 after Corpus had piled up an early 6-1 lead but couldn't hold it. It was St. Dominic's second win in league competition having previously downed Corpus Christi.

In the only other game played on which results were available St. John came out on top over St. James in a high scoring contest 14-10.

In a game replayed after being postponed from the opening day of league competition St. Mary defeated St. Vincent de Paul 14-3.

Columbus Tackles Sebring In Baseball Tournament Tilt

The Christopher Columbus baseball team will be shooting for a berth in the Class A state baseball tournament tonight when the Explorers meet undefeated Sebring at 7:30 at the Blue Flashes home diamond in Schriever.

Columbus won the Class A District 6 title Monday after a four-hit pitching effort from their ace, Dave McCammon, against Belle Glade, although he walked seven and hit three batters.

McCammon opened the scoring with a first inning triple that scored the first CC run. He also received fine support from his battery mate Ken Olson who hit a two-run homer the fourth and also had a r.

"I hope Dave isn't as wild Friday," Coach Pete Aiello of Columbus said after the game, "he was as wild today as I've ever seen him."

Columbus will take an 11-4 season's mark into the game with Sebring, which has a 17-8 record.

However, the Sebring schedule is not as impressive as the Columbus slate as the Blue Flashies played only Class A and B schools. The majority of the Explorers games were played against AA schools.

Bike Rodeo At St. Theresa's

CORAL GABLES — St. Theresa school held a bicycle rodeo recently under the supervision of the Safety Education Unit of the Public Safety Department.

St. Theresa was the first Catholic School in the Miami area to hold such a rodeo, according to Officers Bill Kennedy and Joel Emerick of the Safety Department.

The rodeo was preceded by an assembly in the auditorium and a bicycle inspection.

Purpose of the rodeo was to interest the children in safe driving, both by obeying bicycle riding rules and the proper care of their bikes.

This Cake Perfect For Small Wedding

For a small home wedding reception, nothing is more fitting than a homemade Wedding Cake. Made by the bride's mother, aunt or godmother, such a cake is a symbol of affection as well as an individual work of art and the principal food at the wedding reception.

A cake mix may be used for the three layers and the frosting decorations kept so simple that little skill is required to produce a pleasing effect.

Tiny fresh flowers and foliage are pretty around the cake and fresh flowers, small white roses or orchids, bouvardia, etc. may be set in a little vase atop the cake.

Of course, the most elegant and yet the simplest wedding receptions consists of champagne or champagne punch and wedding cake.

However, small tea sandwiches and those d'oeuvre, a salad such a chicken or cran and nuts and mints may be added to the menu. But the type and scope of the wedding reception menus will depend on the time of the day, the number of people invited and facilities. Buffet service is recommended for most home receptions.

Here are recipes for the wedding buffet.

WEDDING CAKE

- 2 packages white cake mix
- 2 cups water
- 4 egg whites, unbeaten

Prepare cake mix in 4-quart mixing bowl with water and egg whites as directed on package; add almond extract. Generously grease and flour two 8-inch and one 10-inch round layer pans, or line bottoms of pans with waxed paper and grease the sides. Pour batter to equal depths in each pan. Bake in moderate oven 350 deg. F. 20 to 25 minutes for each layer and 40 to 45 minutes for the 10-inch layer. Cool cakes 10 minutes in pans on cake racks; then remove from pans and finish cooling on racks. Trim one 8-inch layer to make a 5-inch round layer.

Prepare Ornamental Frosting. Place 10-inch cake on large flat tray or plate. Spread top and sides with thin layer of frosting. Then cover top of cake smoothly with more frosting. Center 8-inch cake on top of 10-inch cake and frost above. Center 5-inch layer on 8-inch layer. Frost. Place remaining frosting in cake decorating tube and decorate cake as desired. Garnish with silver dragees and flowers, if desired. Makes 30 to 35 tea-type servings.

ORNAMENTAL FROSTING

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 2 pounds (about 12 cups) sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1/2 cup cream (about)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped
- 1 bottle maraschino sirup
- 2 bottles champagne
- 2 bottles sparkling water
- 1/2 bottle brandy

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. Grease and flour a 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pan. Stir together flour, baking powder, and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine sugar and egg whites. Add egg whites and mix until stiff. Add flour mixture and mix until all ingredients are combined. Stir in walnuts, dates, and dried fruit. Pour into prepared pan; bake 60 to 65 minutes, or until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; then remove from pan, and completely cool on wire rack. May be wrapped and frozen for future use.

To serve: Slice thinly. Spread with softened cream cheese. Makes 24 half-sandwiches.

EASY DATE-NUT SANDWICHES

1 2-ounce package cream cheese 1 tablespoon grated orange

2 cups chopped dates 1 tablespoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon baking powder 1/2 cup orange marmalade

1/2 cup sugar 1 cup milk

1/2 cup cream 1 cup finely chopped

1 egg, well beaten bunched almonds

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. Grease and flour a 9-by-3-by-3-inch loaf pan. Stir together flour, baking powder, and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine sugar and egg whites. Add egg whites and mix until stiff. Add flour mixture and mix until all ingredients are combined. Stir in walnuts, dates, and dried fruit. Pour into prepared pan; bake 60 to 65 minutes, or until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; then remove from pan, and completely cool on wire rack. May be wrapped and frozen for future use.

WEDDING CHAMPAGNE PUNCH

- 1/2 bottle cranberry
- 1/2 bottle orange
- 1/2 bottle brandy
- 1/2 bottle maraschino sirup
- 4 jiggers grenadine syrup
- 2 bottles sparkling wine

For a punch bowl prepare an ice ring with twisted orange slices, cherries and sprigs of mint. Put ring of ice in large punch bowl and add cranberry, brandy, sirups and wine. Pour in slowly the champagne and sparkling water. Stir just a little and very gently. Makes about 70 cups.
'My Husband Is A Woman Chaser'

How do you deal with a woman-chaser? My husband and I get along as well as most couples until we go to a party or dance. Then if he gets too much to drink, he starts chasing other women or girls. I've come to feel that our married life is cheap and dirty because I'm not important or special to him. Now I have no desire for sex, and that makes him mad, but I can't help it. I've watched him with other women too many times to feel that we share anything meaningful or unique.

By FATHER JOHN L. THOMAS

Although I don’t wish to make light of your problem, Joan, did being to mind the same comment of a middle-aged wife raising a similar situation, “Oh, he’s like a young puppy barking after cars — he enjoys the chase but doesn’t really want to catch one!” I suppose most wives would find it difficult to take such a benign view of their husband’s amorous antics, yet her observation may reveal considerable insight.

Since no two marriages are wholly alike, however, let’s begin by reviewing the facts in the case as you present them. I gather that you are a fairly young couple, that you have been able to work out more or less successfully most of your initial adjustments, and that your present problem has developed gradually. You have been angered and hurt by your husband’s actions, of course, though their real significance is to be found in the way you interpret them.

As you see it, his tendency to chase after other women whenever he has been drinking too much indicates that he doesn’t really regard you as the “one and only.” You rightly feel that one of the essential qualities in marital love is its exclusiveness, and you can’t see how he can seek the affection of others and still protest that he thinks of his love for you as something unique and special.

He Just Gets To Feel Sociable

This thought of being regarded as just one among many classifications of your own views that it has seriously affected all your feelings toward him. You argue that no wife can be expected to respond eagerly to her husband if she is made to feel that several other women could serve his purposes just as well.

Your husband evidently doesn’t see things your way, Joan. He probably argues that he’s not doing anything wrong and that you’re trying to make mountains out of a molehill. After a few drinks he just gets to feel sociable — everyone involved knows that nothing serious is intended, so why raise such a fuss? If he really planned to be unfaithful, he wouldn’t make his play in public, etc., etc.

Granting that your husband’s conduct is not what it should be, why does he act this way? Several possible reasons come to mind. He may have an exaggerated view of his talents as a “lady-killer.” He may have little understanding of marital companionship — some men regard women either as useful or entertaining but not as intimate, enduring companions.

He may be trying to “get even” with you or to “tell” you something; that is, his actions may indicate that he is dissatisfied with the way you are treating him. The fact that he misbehaves only after he has been drinking too much lends strong support to this last hypothesis.

What is he trying to “tell” you, Joan? I don’t pretend to know for sure, but judging from your remarks, I would suggest that you seem to be cherishing a highly romantic, too exclusively feminine view of marital companionship and its related intimacies.

As a result, you may have failed to develop an adequate understanding of your husband’s affectional needs; you may see yourself as the one who must be constantly wooed; you may be so possessive and demanding of attention that he feels stifled; or you may lead him to believe that he is being taken too much for granted.

Maybe He’s Showing Restlessness

In other words, it is possible that you have not outgrown the honeymoon stage, and he is showing his restlessness at what seems to you to be your lack of understanding of spontaneous cooperation in displaying affection and love. He can’t “get” you directly or when he is sober because he may not understand what’s really bothering him.

How should you deal with this situation? First, in the light of the above observations, you should sincerely ask yourself whether your own attitudes and practices may not require a little readjusting.

Although men and women normally enter marriage with fairly well defined preconceptions of what marriage relationships should be, successful marriages result from the mutual willingness to suspend or delete some of these preconceptions in accordance to the demands of reality. Some spouses are all for adjustment — on their own terms!

Second, another current reaction to your husband’s objectionable conduct is not likely to strengthen your marriage. If he has little understanding or appreciation of real marital companionship, further rejection on your part will only continue to nourish him a little more. Even though he may not be able to discover the reason for his adolescent behaviour, your best approach is to try to be as cooperative and companionable as possible. Above all, remember that if you wish to be loved, you must remain lovable.

PASTORAL DE LOS OBISPOS DOMINICANOS

Piden Cambios en la Constitución

SANTO DOMINGO (NC)— Al señalar graves omisiones en la nueva Constitución de la República Dominicana, los obispos piden que se corrijan para que corresponda mejor al de una nación cristiana.

"Una de las situaciones históricas concretas de la República Dominicana —dice en su aclaración el arzobispo— no deberá estar sujeto a la voluntad de quienes eligen por ese medio la vida del país, pero será simplemente una condena de un grupo de personas que se atreven a amenazar la libertad de pensamiento y de expresión de los dominicanos."

El arzobispo también reitera su criterio de que la nueva Constitución puede estar en conflicto con la voluntad de la comunidad cristiana dominicana.

El próximo domingo, 12 de mayo, los obispos celebrarán un congreso en el cual se expondrán los problemas que deben ser resueltos mediante una nueva Constitución.

En otra medida, se establece que la nueva Constitución debe ser revisada en el contexto de las metas de desarrollo nacional.

Conmemorarán Cuarto Centenario de las Congregaciones Marianas

ST. BRENDAN, 81 Ave. y St., Miami, (78 st.)-El próximo domingo, 12 del dia, se celebrará en el Colegio del Sagrado Corazón, con un congreso de la Iglesia, el cuarto centenario de las Congregaciones Marianas.

El obispo Boza Masvidal, en una declaración emitida en el encuentro, reforzó el criterio de que la Constitución debe ser revisada en el contexto de las metas de desarrollo nacional.

"La Iglesia —dice el obispo— tiene el deber de contribuir al desarrollo de la nación, y en esta tarea, la Iglesia debe actuar en armonía con los intereses de la sociedad dominicana."

CAPÍTULO V

Al sostener que una religión es tan buena como la otra, no importa cuánto difieren entre sí, las religiones, el intelectual expresa una idea del todo opuesta al primer principio de la lógica, lo mismo que al sentido común.

En una regla de la lógica que dos o más proposiciones contradictorias entre sí no pueden ser verdaderas a la vez, una es verdadera, todas sus contradicciones será falsas. Nótese este principio y se des- truya la base de todo racionalismo.

Supongamos a un maestro de escuela mostrando un trozo de papel blanco ante una clase de niños discípulos, pide a cada uno de ellos que diga cuál es el color del papel. Todos disciernan. Uno dice que es "azul", otro que "rojo", aquel otro que "amarillo", aquel "verde" y así todos, hasta que el último dice que es "blanco". Supongamos también, que el maestro tiene tal afecto por cada uno de los niños, que en vez de decir que todos menos uno han escrito, le dice todos bien escrito pero con un tono de voz tan suave que todos piensan que no hay diferencia ninguna. Después de este expectáculo el maestro, en un ataque de furia, le dice a uno de los niños: "Eres un mentiroso". Y el niño responde: "No, muchacho, soy honesto, no he mentido, te equivocaste". Esto es lo que se ha cometido cuando se quiere unificar la religión de una sola base: uno se equivoca.

Cada creyente en nuestro mundo debe ser una chispa de luz, un centro de amor, una leyenda vitificante en medio de sus prójimos, y lo será tanto más porque cuando más estrechamente viva en comunión con Dios el creyente, más profundo es su amor.

No puede haber paz entre los hombres a menos que cada uno construya dentro de sí mismo el orden deseado por Dios.

PAZ EN TERRAS ...

¿Es una religión tan buena como la otra?

A Big Reason Why More & More
New Car Buyers Are Changing Over...

Human Mileage is the greatest value that can be built into a tire... extra quality that makes the tire last longer, extra safety that makes you last longer, too! Think how often you bet your life and the lives of those you love on the power of your tires to stop in time.

VIII reasons why
Van Orsdel’s is Miami’s
most recommended
funeral service

I  Convenient Locations — four chapels strategically located for family and friends.

II  More experienced — Van Orsdel’s conducts more adult funerals than anyone in Dade County . . . and passes savings developed on to the families we serve.

III  Finest facilities — Van Orsdel’s beautiful chapels provide everything possible for comfort and reverent dignity. All chapels equipped with pews and kneeling rails.

IV  Finest service — no compromise with quality. Our best service always — to anyone — regardless of the amount spent — and we guarantee our service.

V  Personal attention — our staff trained to personally handle every problem, no matter how difficult, every detail, no matter how small.

VI  Freedom of choice — every family may select a service price within their means — no one has to plead charity to purchase any of our funerals — no questions are asked — and we use no selling pressure!

VII  Complete funerals, quality for quality, cost less at Van Orsdel’s — and have for over 20 years.

VIII  We offer families a choice of over 60 different caskets, with the finest of funeral service and facilities . . . complete in every detail, from $145 - $215 - $279.
