Pope Paul Grants Apostolic Blessing To All In Diocese

besieged by problems of a turbulent world greater, perhaps, than those which have confronted any Supreme Pontiff, His Holiness Pope Paul VI has found time to inquire about the progress of the Church in South Florida.

The Holy Father also has granted his Apostolic Blessing to all the people of the Diocese of Miami.

In addition, he imparted a special blessing to the more than 100,000 refugees from communist Cuba now sheltered within the Diocese.

At an audience granted some time after his coronation last week, Pope Paul talked to Bishop Coleman F. Carroll about the Diocese of Miami. He was particularly interested in the work of the St. John Vianney Seminary.

Pope Paul praised the generosity of all Americans and exalted their work for the Church throughout the United States.

The papal blessing, sent immediately after the Pope's election and signed by Amleto Giovanni Cardinal Cicognani, Papal Secretary of State, said:

"His Holiness is warmly thankful for your prayerful congratulations and bestows upon Your Excellency and the faithful of the Diocese His particular apostolic blessing."

Cuba was discussed, Pope Paul expressed sadness and said it would "help those of us who are not in Cuba." He also expressed "the wish that the Church in Cuba would serve as interpreter for Pope John XXIII.

The Pope also expressed personal interest in the visit to the Arcos de la Frontera, a mountainous region of Spain. He also spoke about the visit to the ancient city of Marseilles, in France. He expressed great interest in the visit to the Latin American bishops, who have been compared with Pope John XXIII.

Pope Calls Latin Bishops ‘Pastors Of Souls’ Bodies’

Pope Paul VI has praised the bishops of Latin America for a “pastoral sensitivity which urges them to take care of bodies as well as souls.”

In an hour-long audience given July 30, to more than 300 persons representing the Pontifical Commission for Latin America, the Latin American Bishops’ Council (CEPAL) and many individual nations, Pope Paul identified social action as “an extension of the priestly ministry understood in the true sense.”

Notable among those at the audience were Carlo Cardinal Cipolla, President of the Pontifical Commission for Latin America; the late Msgr. Walter Carroll, who served as interpreter for Pope Paul and Paul VI; and Primeau of Manchester, N.H.

The Pontiff expressed his sorrow and said, “Cuba was discussed. Pope Paul is a most great leader.”

The Pope, in replying to the bishops, said he was happy to count as one of the first acts of his pontificate the “special attention paid to the Latin American bishops.”

Pope Paul expressed “special good wishes” to the Latin American bishops, who were four other American bishops; three from Mexico; one from Ireland, and one from Mexico.

Included were Archbishop Cuthbert O’Gara, C.P., retired from Yauco, Puerto Rico; Archbishop John P. Cody, coadjutor of the Archdiocese of New Orleans; Archbishop Celeste J. Damiano, Bishop of Camden, N.J.; Bishop Ernest J. Primate of Manchester, N.H.; and Bishop Thomas Ryan of Armagh, Eire, who formerly served as interpreter for Pope John XXIII.

The Pope urged all those who have been active in Latin America to continue with even greater efforts, to seek new objectives and to broaden their outlook.

Pope Paul Combines Skill Of Pius, John's Charity

By MSGR. JAMES I. TUCEK
MILAN (NC) — Pope Paul VI has brought to the papacy the brilliant oratory and the diplomatic skill of Pius XII and the pastoral experience and expansive charity of Pope John XXIII.

These are the broad lines of the reign of Pope Paul drawn by a man who worked closely with him when he was Archbishop of Milan.

Let me quote personally what I said of Milan, noted two personal traits which he believes will characterize the reign of Pope Paul.

“First of all,” he said, “he has vast intelligence and learning which immediately encompasses a problem and gives it universal application. “Secondly,” he is a man of supreme courtesy which is based on true Christian charity.

UNBURLIED CALM
He cited as an example of the new Pope’s courtesy the fact that he phoned the Milan chancery personally on the evening of his election. He added also his memory of many acts of charity which Pope Paul performed in secret as Archbishop of Milan.

“The events of his life, his preparation, his activities rendered to the Church, his experience in the school of - those two great pontiffs, Pius XI and Pius XII, his pastoral experience in the largest diocese in Europe,” Lazzatti said, “all seem to have forecast a providential design that, one might say, was read by the cardinals gathered in the conclave and allowed them to choose the successor of John XXIII with great speed.”
Pope's Brothers React Humbly

By JAMES C. O'NEILL

CONCORD, Italy (NO — The two brothers of Pope Paul VI have screened their joy with acts of humility over his election to the papacy.

Both Ludovico and Francesco have heard the news of the election on television.

Ludovico, an attorney, was in Gavarnia, in the Province of Pistoia, when he was taking part in a meeting. When he heard Giovanni Cardinal Montini's name mentioned, he stood up and whispered: "Oh! Giovanni Battista, my brother, pope!"

"I'm an immense joy, a joy for the whole world now that's the Father of God," he later told the press. He talked with other relatives in Brescia and urged them to recite the Apostles' Creed.

Francesco, a doctor, has been recovering from a heart attack at his villa in Bovese, a small town near Brescia. When he heard the news of the election, he immediately got up and went on television by Pope Paul VI. He lay flat and had to be given medical attention.

The day before Cardinal Montini left for the conclave in Venice, his family had visited with Francesco.

In Rome the Cardinal's nephew, Giorgio Montini, 38, told the press: "I remember that my uncle had chosen the name of Paul for his son. I remember with deep emotion the news that he had always desired this Papal title."

Giorgio Montini is the son of Ludovico and is also a lawyer. He lives in Rome with his wife and two children.

Margherita Peretti Cesaroli, whose mother cared for the future Pope when he was ill as a boy, last saw the Pontiff this Easter Monday while visiting his brother Francesco.

SUFFERED FREQUENTLY

As a child, Giovanni Battista suffered frequently from ill health. Pictures taken at an early age show him to be thin, to have a graceful, acquiline nose, and resemblance to his mother, Guidetta Alighieri Montini, particularly in regard to the depth of his eyes.

Besides staying in the summertime at their home in Conselve, the Montinis also spent part of the summer in Verolavecchia, at their mother's home. The women often recall that even the early years — when the entire family — mother, father and three boys — would leave the house to walk to church on Sunday.

The only person now living in the house in Verolavecchia, another village on the outskirts of Brescia, is 80-year-old Teresa Alighieri Peretti, a cousin of the Pope's mother. She recalls many times when Giovanni Battista was like his boyhood.

She said he was "a boy like all the others, but he often had in his attentive eyes a sort of look of delight, and his slight figure showed even then some aesthetic touch, so much so that it almost frightened one."

"I remember," she added, "that several times he was surprised, but not disturbed, when he was found praying in a corner of the garden."

INHERITED WISDOM

According to his acquaintance, Father Luigi Benassi, archpriest of Fargengo Nomburg, Giovanni Battista "inherited great wisdom from his mother."

Recalling his childhood days with Giovanni Battista Montini, Father Benassi said: "In Verolavecchia it used to be the custom that a bell would ring at three o'clock in the afternoon to remind all of the death of Our Lady, immediately, that my uncle would fall into a brief, intense prayer. If, later, he happened to hear the Angelus, he would — without any regard for human respect and wherever he happened to be — ask all children or adults, or whoever was present, to recite the beautiful prayer with him."

Father Benassi recalled that it was the future Pope who made it possible for him to become a priest.

He said that one day when Giovanni and his brothers were visiting the Beni so far from home, the Beni 82-year-old grandmother said: "Do you know my "Big" (an affectionate diminutive for Luigi) wants to study to be a priest? But how is it possible? We can't afford it."

According to Father Benassi, Giovanni Battista replied: "There's always Providence. Giovanni Battista then took him aside and whispered: "Be ready to leave for Brescia soon. I want to be a priest, but don't tell anyone."

RECEIVED LETTER

A short time later, Benassi received a letter informing him that he had been given a scholarship to the seminary. The money was raised by a charitable institution whose president was Giorgio Montini, Giovanni Battista's brother.

Teachers and classmaties in Brescia remember the future Pope as an intelligent student who was also quiet and mild. Like his brothers, he attended the Cesare Arci Institute, an elementary and upper school conducted by Jesuits.

Giovanni Battista was found seated in a corner in the forefront in resisting efforts of the anticlerical elements in Brescia which tried to close this school out of hatred for the Church.

Later Giovanni Battista attended the Liceo or Junior College of Arlindo da Brescia and at the same time was an extern student following courses at the Brescia seminar. Because of ill health, he did not enter the seminary until late, not receiving his cassock until November, 1942, a year before his ordination.

Ordained in the Brescia cathedral on May 29, 1920, by Bishop Giacinto Gaggi, Father Montini offered his first Mass the next day at the sanctuary of Our Lady of Graces near his home. To those present it was a particularly tender circumstance that the chasuble he wore had been made from the white silk of his mother's wedding dress.

PAUSING from a busy schedule shortly after his coronation, Pope Paul VI extended his blessing and exchanged a few words with a young Italian boy.

GREEK PROFESSORS, STUDENTS GRANTED ATTENDANCE

Pope Greets Orthodox Pilgrims

VATICAN CITY (NO — Pope Paul VI welcomed to Rome a group of Greek professors and students and told them that this center of the Catholic world is in "great and wonderful harmony with your own hearts . . . with your faith in Christ the Lord."

He gave a special Sunday audience to a delegation from the Greek school in Greece.

The Orthodox teachers and students were in Rome as guests of the Catholic ecclesiastical organisation known as Untas, They were introduced to the Pope by Father Charles Breyer, S.J., president of the International Untas Association.

"It is not this visit, for which We give thanks to the Lord, within the category of events which Our predecessor John XXIII — who loved Greece so much — liked to view as "the heart of Rome, the panorama of the Catholic Church and contemplate the wish in your presence that for all of you. The Life Of Pope Paul VI In Pictures

Birthplace of Pope Paul VI is this street in Concesio, on the outskirts of Brescia, Italy, where the Holy Father was born Sept. 26, 1897. Parents of Pontiff were from middle-class families in Brescia, Italy. His mother, Giuditta Alghisi Montini, who died in 1943, was a lady of great virtue. His father, Giorgio, served three times in the Italian Parliament, and was editor of a daily newspaper.

BETORE ORDINATION HE DID WORK IN CATHOLIC YOUTH GROUPS

Pope Lifelong Leader In Lay Activities

By MSGR. JAMES I. TUCER

VATICAN CITY (NC) — The reigns of Pope Paul VI dates well for the lay apostolate, because of his active experience and his enthusiastic support in the past.

Even before his ordination to the priesthood, he was militant-ly active in the Catholic youth organizations of Italy. Then as a young priest he distinguished himself for his work among Catholic university students.

Finally, during his years as a Vatican official and as Arch-bishop of Milan, he has been regarded as one of the leaders of the Italian nation for his ac-tive interest and encouragement of artists, professionals and in-tellectuals.

In 1952, shortly after his return from a brief assignment at the apostolic nunciature in Poland, Father Montini was assigned by Basilio Cardinal Pompilj, Vicar General of Rome, to be spiritual director of the Federation of Catholic University Students of Italy (FUCI).

Father Montini's assignment could not have come in more difficult years. It was a time when the young fascists, the "squadristi," were secretly and un-oficially encouraged to harass Catholic youth activities. Father Montini always counseled avoiding open conflict, saying once at a Catholic student congress:

"If we cannot today go forward with banners unfurled, we will have to work in silence."

A university student of those days is the present Archbpishop Serpico Pignatelli, Apostolic Delegate to West-Central Africa.

He wrote:

"If in Italy today there are men, including those in govern-ment, who are prepared to en-ter the external battles of life without timidity, it is due to that con-sciousness that was formed in them in the years of FUCI, and Father Montini was for many of them a spiritual director of unique firmness.

The lessons learned by Msgr. Montini in that hard school of Catholic Action under fascism were later taught by Cardinal Montini as Arch-bishop of Milan."

In his pastoral letter of Lent, 1963, Cardinal Montini observed that the Church's contact with the contemporary world "direct-ly concerns the apostolate of the laity and could not be otherwise, for the laity live in that world to which the mission of the Church must be carried."

"They have greater experi-ence with it than the eccle-siastics," he said. "They are the closest worshippers of the Church's mission to the world and are a source of grace for the hierarchy begins here, a collaboration which consists in the study of the present world and in indicating the results of the study to the Church."

"It is an informative collabora-tion. The studies of statistics and religious sociology, conduct-ed under the vigilance of ex-pert ecclesiastics, can be of great utility and has already been of great use to the pastoral ministry."

"All the studies of environ-ments, exploration of existing laws, the conclusions of mod-ern pedagogy and the art of publicity, and so forth, can be a high contribution of the laity to those who have the responsibility of guiding the mission of the Church."

Cardinal Montini on the eve of the opening of the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council ant-icipated the pronouncements on the lay apostolate as one of its most important works. In the same pastoral letter, he wrote:

"One may believe that the Catholic laity will be given explicit and honorable recognition in the council."

"The person of the layman in the Church will certainly be exalted to the level to which his Baptism raised him, assuming him into supernatural life, and to the level given him by Con-firmation, calling him to the public profession of his faith and to Christian perfection."

"The terms of the 'royal priesthood' of the simple laity will be greatly clarified."

In that pastoral letter Cardinal Montini foresees two special aspects of the lay apostolate which he considered should be brought out in the council.

They were the development of the laYman's spirituality "in an increasingly more inti-mate participation in the liturgical mysteries of the Christian community," and the development of the layman's vocation "by his col-laboration with the hierarchy through his own witness of Christ and the Church in the modern world."

It was inconceivable to Cardi-nal Montini that any Catholic layman or cleric should not be keenly interested in the council. He wrote:

"The council concerns us, not only because it touches our in-terests and destinies in some manner, but also because all of us, if we are truly faithful mem-bers of the Mystical Body of Christ, must participate in it in certain form and measure. It is the whole Church which expresses itself in the council, and we are the Church."

"The council is not a magic wand. Certainly, it will propose a revisionary program of discipline and worship in the Church, will give dispositions and precepts in many sectors so need-ful of correction, of updating and development. However, its immediate greatness cannot be found in this, and even less its efficacy. The council will not be measured purely by its good ju-ridic and ritual results."

Fatima’s Third Secret Now

In Hands Of Pope Paul VI

The first “secret” revealed by Sister Lucy — born Lucia dos Santos — was the vision of hell which the three children had said they had in 1917.

The second referred to devotion to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. Sister Lucy reported that our Lady said in the apparition that devotion would be the means of saving souls and achieving peace for the world.

It was then, Sister Lucy added, that the Blessed Virgin asked for the consecration of Russia to her Immaculate Heart, and requested people to receive Holy Communion on the first Saturday of every month in preparation for reparation.

INHERITED BY BISHOP

The sealed envelope containing the “secret” — about which there have been many rumors concerning the prophecies it is said to contain — was inherited by Bishop Joao Pereira Vennencio when he succeeded to the diocese in 1958 following the death of Bishop da Silva.

Earlier it had been thought that the envelope would be entrusted to Manuel dos Santos, but that had been disallowed by Bishop da Silva’s desk.

In 1960, Bishop Vennencio announced that the envelope would be entrusted to Manuel dos Santos. Sister Lucy, the latter said, does not disapprove of this. Sister Lucy herself told Bishop da Silva’s desk that she had no objection to the parcel being opened.

In February, 1960, Cardinal Cerejeira, Patriarch of Lisbon, but it remained unopened, according to the Vatican letter has stated.

words to explain myself, I would have said one thing at one time and another at another time. By wanting to explain myself but without being able to do so, I would perhaps have caused such a confusion of ideas that it might even — who knows? — have ruined the work of God.

“Silence has been a great grace for me. For this I give thanks to God and I believe that all He does is good.”

In Hands Of Pope Paul VI

In February, 1960, Cardinal Cerejeira said: “I cannot comment on the expediency or inexpediency of divulging the secret. I know nothing about it, nor have I been consulted. Regarding publication in 1960, I know only that it has been published in the papers.”

It is now known that in the same month the sealed envelope was sent to the late Pope John XXIII. Although no official announcement was made at that time, it was reported that the Vatican had received the envelope and knew about its contents but was unlikely to make them public. Nothing further has been said to date.

He stated that the “world-wide spread of contradictory rumors” had caused Church authorities to maintain a “prudent reserve” about the third “secret.”

TALKS OF FAMILY

At about the same time, Bishop Venancio said in a statement requested by Saad, official organ of the Blue Army of Our Lady of Fatima in Washington, D.C.,

“It is necessary to be always attentive, especially in these troubled times, not to contribute even in the slightest degree to an atmosphere of exaggerated anxiety for the future, particularly with relation to the secret of Fatima.”

Sister Lucy, now a nun at Carmelite convent in Coimbra, is not allowed to see anyone but her own immediate family. Her sister, Maria dos Anjos, told me that when she goes to see her at the convent, she does not discuss the apparition but talks only of family affairs.

But a publication of Portuguese Catholic Action quoted Sister Lucy as saying: “It might seem to some people that I should have said these things some time ago. According to such people, they would have had greater value a few years ago than they have now. This would be the case if God had wanted me to face the world as a prophet. But I do not think that this was His intention. If it had been, He would have told me to speak in 1957 instead of telling me not to — an order that was confirmed by His representatives on earth.

REMEMBER MY WORDS

“I therefore think that God only wanted to use me to remind the world of the need to avoid sin and to make reparation, by prayer and penance, for offenses against God.

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Christians are the persons best qualified to humanize a society threatened by technocracy or the tyranny of the machine, a Vatican letter has stated.

Christians’ “sense of human values” gives them this ability, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, Papal Secretary of State, said in a letter to this year’s French Social Week.

Commenting on the Social Week’s theme — “Democratic Society” — the letter said that the Church “gives not only encouragement but support” to a democracy in which both citizens and their authorities act justly and responsibly.

Because French democracy is historically linked to the slogan of the French Revolution — “Liberty, Equality, Fraternity” — the letter touched on Catholic teaching regarding the three points. It stated:

“The liberty that Christianity defends is not a free flight of caprice, impulsive, scandal and vice to the detriment of others and to the scorn of the law. It is the awakening of a responsibility, as a personal moral duty, before God.

“The equality that is asserted does not consist of demanding a vain and unattainable equalization of temporal possessions, measured by quantity, but proclaims a common origin and a common dignity — that of sons of God, called to the same beatific vision.

“If democracy says fraternity, Revelation teaches us all to love all men whatever their condition, for they have all been ransomed by the same Saviour. And Revelation obliges us to offer to those who have the least, the means of arriving in dignity at the same destination.

“True democracy, the letter continued, not only demands that the masses should be properly informed, “but also that they should strive to judge and discriminate among the information they receive.” Cardinal Cicognani went on:

“There is therefore need for a press that is free and loyal and solicitous for objectivity, for mass media which are not at the exclusive service of special interests.”

DOUBLE CRISIS

The letter also spoke of a “double crisis” in democracy, which was the subject of a previous Social Week in 1964. This twofold crisis was described as the withdrawal of citizens from civic responsibility and the withdrawal of the state from the use of its authority.

The letter said:

“Does not this double crisis find its profound cause in the conflict between economics and politics?”

On the one hand, it stated, “the citizen is disillusioned in the progress of institutions because the liberty — more formal than real — reserved by his ballot does not assure him the rights he claims for objectivity, for a proper share in some property, and a system of insurance and of social security that permits him to rear a family.

On the other hand, the state withdraws because it finds between the citizen and itself a crowd of organized interests — of ideological, economic, corporative and social groups — that hang heavy on its decisions, on every measure of and social policy.

It thus shackling its liberty.”
Religious Leaders Praised
For Racial Progress Here

Natives and "adopted sons" alike, South Floridians have been more than annoyed in recent years on visits or business trips to the North on microscopes about "the deep South" and its treatment of Negroes. Maybe it is because South Florida has become more cosmopolitan in the color line than most areas of the nation, but when both white and colored, have seemed to reach a more perfect understanding of our individual as well as our mutual problems in racial relations.

At least, permit this writer to express his individual opinion that, with some few exceptions, of course, we have come to respect and to recognize the good of each other on a basis of morality and justice.

Actually, there have been few racial incidents since the early 1950's.

During the succeeding years, integration of schools was begun and Negroes won the right to use public parks, swimming pools and golf courses. Most notable changes in most theaters and many, but not all, hotels. Downtown lunch counters, particularly in Miami, have been opened to Negroes. Since the creation of the Diocese of Miami in 1958, Catholic churches and Catholic schools have been integrated, without incident, to the fullest possible extent.

With a wave of racial unrest and demonstrations breaking out in cities of the north and the "not-too-far-north" South, South Florida was given the threat that the community was going to blow up like a powder keg," too. That is when the religious leaders of the community stepped in.

Theirs is a credit to and fitting gratitude to President Kennedy for having included Monsignor F. Carroll, white and Negro, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders get together. They issued an historic proclamation calling upon the community to guarantee to every citizen the same legal and civil rights.

Business leaders were quick to react and within one week, the Miami Metro Commission passed an ordinance creating a Community Relations Board to deal with racial problems in Dade County. That was just one month ago, on June 12, and Bishop Cahal was named chairman of the board selected.

Since that time, while other cities, both North and South, have been plagued and disgraced by racial rioting, South Florida has been calm, after the Community Relations Board had declared: "We believe, as Americans, that all men are equal under the law."

"Therefore, we proclaim as inalienable every man's right to equal treatment without discrimination of any kind in employment, education, housing, hospitals, unions, jobs, training, political organizations, recreation and worship."

The Community Relations Board is moving along, smoothly and quietly, and further developments -- or the prevention of developments may be expected, we feel certain. The board surely must be inspired by that noteworthy document, the 1958 Statement of the Bishops of the United States, entitled "Discrimination and the Christian Conscience," which read:

The (racial) problems we inherit today are rooted in decades, even centuries of custom and cultural patterns. It is a sign of great wisdom, readiness to face the problems we face, to prepare for advances, and to by-pass the non-essential if it interferes with essential progress. We may well call it a "clean house" movement. But we equally deplore rash impetuousity that would sacrifice the achievement of decades in ill-timed and ill-considered adventure.

"For this reason we hope and earnestly pray that responsible and sober-minded Americans of all religious faiths, in all areas of our land, will seize the mantle of leadership from the agitator and the racist."

The Voice congratulates the religious leaders of South Florida.

Red Line Still the Same

Some time ago when communist leaders poured fulsome praise upon Pope John's "Pastoral Letter," the writer read the masterful work, wondered what his angle was. For in the remarkable document, there was a strong condemnation of Red philosophy without actually mentioning the evil by name.

And by contrast there was an equally powerful affirmation of the rights and dignity of all men, a claim to be forever continued by the communists and reversed by the fair-minded nations.

Recently it has become obvious that the communists were preparing to shift their tactics accordingly, in order to force us to their own conviction of what is right and what is wrong. To this debite in Catholic colleges the question of peace along the lines presented in the Encyclical. Moreover, they are most desirous of working out some "united-front relations," offering to work with Catholic and sober-minded Americans of all religious faiths, in all areas of the country.

The Voice congratulates the religious leaders of South Florida.

Strictly in keeping with Red policy to make use of the terrors of the moment in order to create more confusion and break down peaceful approaches. We should not be surprised at this. The goal of communism is, as always, world domination.

The only things that change with communist leaders are their tactics, bordering on pestilence, now threatening nuclear war, and all designed to divide, confuse and prevent progress in social and racial justice.

Father Cronin's analysis of their tactics and the possibility of further discussions between the Holy See and Red leaders should be studied carefully, because these will surely continue to beguile and confuse others.

Russia-China Dispute Real; Split May Help Free World

By J. J. Gilbert

WASHINGTON (NO) — More and more people here are saying the cleavage between Soviet Russia and Red China is the real thing, even though the communists may try to minimize it.

Experts say the differences between Moscow and Peking over threats to world peace, for example, are in fact as great as in the days of Stalin. But some hold that the benefits outweigh the handicap.

These latter authorities claim the "fiction of communist unity and infallibility will be destroyed, and Red in countries other than Russia and China will be confused.

Many reasons are ascribed for the parting. At the root of it, it is said, is a struggle for leadership in the communist world.

Some authorities say Red China feels it has staked its own survival by its alliance with Peking, but some hold that the benefits outweigh the handicap.

There are some instances in which the First Amendment requires the Government to take notice of religious incompatibilities in the courts. At the root of it, it is said to have largely cut off military and economic help in 1961. The new move would be in the field of all Red China is said to get out of third of the oil it uses, and all of its aviation gasoline.

"Russia and Red Russia, Beijing and Moscow, when it comes to aviation, some experts insist it is Peking that is trying to force them to break with Moscow, while attempting to put the blame on the latter." This theory, says, indicates that Red China feels it can get its oil elsewhere.

It said quite laconically that it is said, a struggle for leadership in the communist world.

WASHINGTON (NO) — More and more people here are saying the cleavage between Soviet Russia and Red China is the real thing, even though the communists may try to minimize it.

Experts say the differences between Moscow and Peking over threats to world peace, for example, are in fact as great as in the days of Stalin. But some hold that the benefits outweigh the handicap.

These latter authorities claim the "fiction of communist unity and infallibility will be destroyed, and Red in countries other than Russia and China will be confused.

Many reasons are ascribed for the parting. At the root of it, it is said, is a struggle for leadership in the communist world.

Some authorities say Red China feels it has staked its own survival by its alliance with Peking, but some hold that the benefits outweigh the handicap.

There are some instances in which the First Amendment requires the Government to take notice of religious incompatibilities in the courts. At the root of it, it is said to have largely cut off military and economic help in 1961. The new move would be in the field of all Red China is said to get out of third of the oil it uses, and all of its aviation gasoline.

"Russia and Red Russia, Beijing and Moscow, when it comes to aviation, some experts insist it is Peking that is trying to force them to break with Moscow, while attempting to put the blame on the latter." This theory, says, indicates that Red China feels it can get its oil elsewhere.

But what about the fact that Russia-China Dispute Real; Split May Help Free World

We Must Remember, The Church Is God's Invention

By MSGR. JAMES J. WALSH

Now that Pope John Paul has definitely settled the date of the re-opening of the Ecumenical Council, a great deal of speculation is being centered on the possible topics that will be discussed.

One of the subjects that seems certain is a great deal of attention to the nature of the Church itself. Detailed talks on the matter of unity among churches seem certain to bring forth a deeper analysis of the real purpose of the Church than ever before.

This seems likely because among the many great men of today who profess Christianity there is a great concern over social and racial justice and the problems of peace.

The Church is of divine origin, as the leaders of the Church were impressed and clearly illustrated in the Gospels. A few years a novelty in one of his efforts to rewrite the Bible presented St. Paul as the founder of the Church. He started off with the premise that Christ had no intention of starting any kind of a church. And yet against his absurd claim, stand the words of Christ to Peter, "Open this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell will not prevail against it."

UNITY OF CHURCH

In all the recent news stories concerning Pope John Paul, it was always taken for granted that the Catholic Church can date its beginning from the time of the Apollos. It is the only Church of course that does not trace its origin to a human being. It alone goes back to the hands of Christ. Therefore, it is a supernatural reality, not a phenomenon of the earth alone.

Moreover, we have a right to expect that man is in a supernatural light because of the fact that she is divine in her constitutional government. There has gradually coming about the better understanding of this perhaps than ever before.

Still there is the matter of the few "bad popes" in history. Some non-Catholics know that bishops and priests appear like other leaders, prone to mistakes, guilty of bad judgment.

At times, in need of counsel. They wonder if these men are running the Church how can we claim it is divine in its government?

As a matter of fact in the past, non-Catholics have marvelled at the unity of the Church in faith and government and worship, and this is not an extraordinary compliment to our leaders. They have come to think of our Church as being a united body of believers.

DEFENCE OF ORIGIN

For so many to agree on so much, when apart from these religious convictions, we would not understand her true nature.

We will not be able to discuss the unity of the Church as a political entity, the role in the world today. Nor will we be able to explain in a reasonable manner why there can be no compromise on certain truths and principles which have come from God Himself. We may fail the Church, but the Church can never fail us.

People may blame her for harshness or lack of understanding, since some of her laws at times may pinch. But in blaming her they blame God. God is true because He is from God, the Church has no life or reason or authority.

How Parents Can Introduce Child To God

By FATHER LEO J. TRESE

It is a wonderful privilege which parents have, to be the first persons to introduce a child to God. The introduction is not quite as simple as saying, "Mickey, this is God." A child's acquaintance with God comes gradually, day by day and a year by year.

Father Trese, however, who have the honor of welcoming God's face to a child.

His first image of God and his first feeling about God will be with the child throughout his life. The image later will be refined and perfect as knowledge increases, but the child's basic attitude towards God will be permanent. That is why it is so important for a child to see God. To watch the parents see God. He really is a God of love.

A child should hear, "God loves you," as often as he hears, "Mommy loves you," or, "Daddy loves you." The child should know that God watches over him, lovingly, as he sleeps, and that God is with him, helping him, all the day long. The child should hear often of God's goodness, too; God's goodness in nature as well as God's goodness in supernatual. "Isn't God good to give us the grass and the trees and the beautiful flowers?" isn't God good to listen to our prayers?" "Wasn't it good of God to give you such a beautiful soul?"

TRUTH ABOUT HELL

Love and goodness. A child's concept of God should be built around these two ideas. Eventually a child must know about God's justice, too, but preferably not until the conviction of God's love has been firmly impressed upon his mind.

When the subject of hell comes up, a child should know the true nature of hell. He should not be given a picture taken from Dante's Inferno. Hell is the awful state of unhappiess suffered by persons who have cut themselves off, forever, from God.

God doesn't want anyone to hell. A soul in hell is there because he chose hell for himself. There was something in this life which he loved more than he loved God. Much as He loves us, God cannot make us love Him if we do not want to.

God cannot make us come to Him in heaven if we refuse. This is the truth about hell. It is the truth that a child, according to his capacity, should have.

GREAT TRAGEDY

It is a great tragedy if a parent uses God as a disciplinary tool. It is an injustice to God to use Him as a club over a child's head. "God won't love you if you do that." "God will be angry with you." "God punishes naughty boys." Such statements introduce God to the child as a glorified policeman, with lasting harm to the child's concept of God. If God is involved in a behavior problem, it should be only in a positive way. For example: "If you love God you will do what He wants you to do," or, "When you are good, you are telling God that you love Him." A child not only must be introduced to God as a God of love; the child also must be helped to form a right conscience. A child should not be told, "Oh, that is a bad, bad sin," when the little tike is not even old enough to know the difference between moral right and moral wrong.

A child of three or four is simply incapable of committing sin. To tell such a child that he has sinned, is to sow in his mind guilt feelings.

AN ALTAR BOY NAMED "SPECK"

"Do you have any announcements for me to make, Father?"
There was once a saintly old priest who had a rocking chair in his study. He would rock back and forth, praying: "O Lord, give me souls"; but he never left the sanctuary. The priest loved the piazza, in full four-directional view of mankind. The priest canonically legislating for her own flock, not just calling oblation and the byways to meet prodigal children, before they are too late. The priest said, "It is better to do something foolish with, 'but let us be 'fools for Christ' instead."

Place PDW Colonies in the piazza, in full four-directional view of mankind. The priest called it to herself; she addressed all men as brothers.

There are the times in which we live—glorious times, missionary times! For as Paul said: "The most beloved members of the community are the poor, the helpless, upon whom we bless from the depth of our heart." What does this mean to the Catholics of the United States? It means that we must be the Church of the Poor or we will be the "poor" Church. It means that we must not supply all our needs before supplying the wants of the poor throughout mission lands. It means that we too must step out of our churches and take a look at the hungry, impoverished world—for it is in the midst of this world we will find our earthly Father, the Vicar of Christ. Those who share this vision will share something for him and the world whom he serves. Send now offerings to the new head of The Society for the Propagation of the Faith, Paul VI.

Vincentians Named To Staff New Major Seminary Here

Five Vincentians Fathers of the Eastern Province of the Congregation of the Mission have been appointed to the staff of the new St. Vincent de Paul Major Seminary now nearing completion in Boynton Beach.

The Very Rev. Sylvester A. Taggart, C. M., provincial superior of the Vincentians Fathers, announced the appointments with the approval of Bishop Coleman F. Carroll.

Father Carey J. Leonard, C. M., for the past three years director of schools at Mary Immaculate Seminary, Northampton, Pa., will serve as rector. Father Joseph A. Skelly, C. M., will serve as assistant rector and director of seminarians. He has a Licentiate in Sacred Theology from Catholic University of America.

Father Paul J. Leoffler, C. M., will serve as assistant rector and director of seminarians. He has a master of arts degree in philosophy from Catholic University of America.

Spiritual director for the major seminarians will be Father Joseph M. O'Donnell, C. M., who has been a member of the faculty at St. John Vianney Minor Seminary in Miami's southwest section, the major seminary in the southeast United States.

Other members of the major seminary faculty are Father James F. O'Donnell, C. M., who has a master of arts degree in philosophy from Catholic University of America, and Father Leslie J. Sheridan, C. M., who will serve as procurator and director of the library.

The major seminary, located on an 80-acre tract on Military Trail, one and a half miles east of the Sun- shine State Parkway, opens in September. It will be possible for a candidate for the priesthood to complete his studies without leaving South Florida.

About 180 seminarians will be accommodated in the seminary designed by New York architects, Urban and Brayton Associates, and constructed by John McShain of Philadelphia, builder of many outstanding institutions, including the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

An eight-building complex will include faculty and administration wing, chapel, refectory, kitchen, classrooms and library for seminarians. A gymnasium and swimming pool are also included in construction plans.

Conducted by the Vincentians Fathers who staff St. John Vianney Minor Seminary in Miami's southwest section, the major seminary will provide two years of upper division college work and four years of theology.

The Congregation of the Mission also conducts nine major seminaries and 10 minor seminaries in various cities of the U.S. In addition to administering those seminaries, four high schools, 12 mission houses and a house of studies in Washington, D.C.

Members are also engaged in parish work and care for the sick, aged and infirm, prisoners, orphans and the insane in many institutions. In Panama they care for lepers, and some members of the order devote themselves exclusively to the promotion of novenas in honor of Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal.

The apparitions Mary is said to have revealed the form and elements of the miraculous medal, which was first struck in 1832.

Establisher of Miraculous Medal Association Dead

PHILADELPHIA (NC) — A Solemn Benediction Mass was offered at Mary's Central Shrine in the Germantown section for Father Joseph A. Skelly, C. M., known for promoting devotion to Mary through the miraculous medal.

Father Sylvester A. Taggart, C. M., Provincial of the Vincentians' eastern province, offered the Mass for the 90-year-old Vincentian, who died at the headquarters of the Central Association of the Miraculous Medal here after a long illness.

Father Skelly had been in religious life 72 years, a priest for 63 years and director for 48 years of the Miraculous Medal Association, which he founded in 1915.

Under his direction the association distributed more than 70 million miraculous medals and published some 40 million booklets telling the medal's story and promoting the perpetual novena in honor of Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal now conducted in nearly 4,500 churches in the U.S. and around the world.

The miraculous medal devotion owes its origin to apparitions made by Mary to St. Catherine Labouré in 1838. During the apparitions Mary is said to have revealed the form and elements of the miraculous medal, which was first struck in 1832.

Iowa Lutherans Oppose Aid To Private Schools

WAVERTY, IOWA (NC) — The Iowa District of the American Lutheran Church reiterated its opposition to Federal aid for parochial education — and also warned its own members to be cautious about accepting U.S. grants to church colleges.

Convention sessions were held at Wartburg College, an American Lutheran school, which recently received a $900,000 U.S. loan for an addition to its student memorial union.

School Bus Rides For All Constitutional, Official Says

HARRISBURG, Pa (NC) — Pennsylvania’s attorney general has said tax-paid school bus rides for parochial and other private school pupils would be constitutional.

Attorney General Walter E. Alessandroni’s opinion was based, in part, on the recent controversial decision of the U.S. Supreme Court which threw out constitutional Bible reading and recitation of the Our Father in public schools.

The Supreme Court said in its decision that to test whether an action violates the First Amendment, it is necessary to ask whether “the purpose and primary effect” is to advance or inhibit religion.

Alessandroni said that giving school bus rides to parochial and other private school children has the “secular legislative purpose” of “getting them safely and expeditiously to school.”

“This does not have a primary effect that either advances or inhibits religion,” he said.

Alessandroni said Gov. William W. Scranton “expressed sympathy” with the bill.

The State Department of Public Instruction has estimated it would cost the state an additional $5,000,000 if all 68,000 parochial school pupils in the state ride tax-paid buses.

But sponsors reply that not all parochial school children will be eligible or want to ride the buses. They estimate the cost at $1,800,000 annually.

Serra Traits Like Priests’, Archbishop Tells Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (NC) — Archbishop Joseph T. McCuecken of San Francisco told Serra Club members in convention here that every true Serran has spiritual characteristics “closely akin to the qualities of a good priest.”

Every true Serran is fatherly, pious and Eucharistic, the Archbishop said following a Pontifical Mass he offered in St. Ignatius church.

Some 2,000 persons took part in the 21st annual convention of Serra International, which is composed of 243 clubs whose members help foster vocations to the priesthood.

“The member of a Serra Club is usually a family man,” Archbishop McCuecken said. “He is one who has learned that his professional reputation and his prestige in business is secondary to his success in raising his family.”

He is also a spiritual leader in the home, exercising “mainly initiative in family prayers and devotion,” and courage in defending his children “from the invasive elements of the de-Christianized world,” the Archbishop stated.

“The fatherliness of the Serrans will protect the grace of the home,” he said, “and this same fatherliness will extend far beyond his own backyard.”

Archbishop McCuecken said that Serrans share in the priesthood of the Sacrament of Confirmation.

“The ordained priests are expected to be mediators between the people and their maker. Yes, the Serrans, can be mediators between the Church and the world.”

He said the priest’s work is rich and meaningful because you is an apostolate directly to the ordained priesthood, to enhance its prestige, to support its work and to augment its ranks.

“You are, therefore, pious men because you praise and promote the priesthood of Christ in your own family and in the world; lay apostles who share in the imperative duty of the clergy to perpetuate itself among men.”

The Archbishop said “the Serran, too, is deserving of name to the extent that he is a Eucharistic man.”

“Not every Serran can go to Mass and Holy Communion daily,” he stated, “but every Serran, in the very midst of his daily duties, may lift his thoughts frequently to the Eucharist in repeated spiritual communion.

“To the extent then that you accept Eucharistic man, the living love of Christ will radiate from you, like the rays from the sun. For though the seed of vocations will germinate and grow.

“By virtue of your spiritual formation, your prayers will bring us priests who are holy and wise, priests who will give the world a great harvest of souls,” the Archbishop concluded.

NEA Relaxes Stand Opposing Bills On Private School Aid

DETROIT (NC) — The National Education Association has relaxed its policy of total opposition to any proposal for Federal school aid which includes help for education in nonpublic schools.

The association's Delegate Assembly at its 11th convention voted down an amendment presented from the floor which would have re-committed the powerful organization to its past position.

Spokesmen for the NEA's influential lobbyists in Washington said the 6,800 delegates that they needed more elbow room in negotiations than the old policy afforded.

The new policy is not a blank check. Delegates were told that the NEA still would oppose Federal education aid which it regards as in violation of Church-State relations.

The resolution itself said the NEA would be guided by the principle that "legislation be consistent with the constitutional provision respecting the establishment of religion and with the tradition of separation of Church and State."

It also called for a judicial review clause to determine the constitutionality of legislation which would involve church-related schools. Such a clause presumably would give legal standing to a taxpayer's suit in Federal courts.

The 81,600-member NEA has run into Congressional criticism in the past year because of its unrelenting opposition to any type of assistance for education in private schools and colleges. It is credited with killing a college aid bill last year on these grounds.

Masses and Holy Communions offered in parish churches throughout the United States for peoples living under atheistic tyranny in various parts of the world is the goal of the League of Prayer for the Captive Peoples during Captive Nations Week, July 14-21.

According to Father Cletus Hanly, S.J., a member of the faculty at Marquette High School, Milwaukee, Wis., who recently met in Fort Lauderdale with Miss Natalie White, league secretary and member of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs parish, and Brother Bernard, O.S.B., of St. Leo Abbey, the League seeks to enroll every parish in its crusade of prayer for the intentions of the peoples who have been deprived of their spiritual freedom.

The result of an idea suggested by the Jesuit priest, who is the author of a textbook entitled “The Communist Conspiracy,” by the Jesuit priest, who is the author of a textbook entitled “The Communist Conspiracy,” the League of Prayer for the Captive Peoples urges each parish to “spiritually adopt” a parish in an atheistic country. In the Diocese of St. Augustine, the Catholic Action Society of St. Francis Xavier parish in the Diocese of Matanzas, Cuba.

Bishop Alfred Mendez, C.S.C., of Arrecibo, Puerto Rico, is chairman of the executive committee of the League which is under the patronage of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Other members of the hierarchy who serve on the committee are Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, honorary chairman; Bishop Coleman F. Carroll, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, Bishop Edward J. McManus, O.F.M., of Havana, Cuba’s number one religious exile; and Bishop Ceslaus Sipovic, Titular Bishop of Mariantanana, exiled from Russia.

The League of Prayer for the Captive Peoples asks each priest to offer a Mass each month for the “sheep without shepherds,” and urges both religions and lay persons to assist at the Mass and receive Holy Communion for the intentions of the captives who have been deprived of their spiritual freedom.

Parishes and individuals desiring to participate may contact Miss White by writing to her at P.O. Box 8911, Fort Lauderdale.

3 N.Y. VISITORS WHO TAUGHT RELIGION HERE

They Have 'Sand In Their Shoes'

PUNTA GORDA — Three New York state residents returned home this week with "sand in their shoes," having devoted their summer vacation to teaching religion classes and taking a census in the Sacred Heart parish here.

Susan Burns, of Auburn, N.Y., and Ana Sevier and Ellen Ford, of Rochester, who graduated in June with Bachelor of Arts degrees from Nazareth College, Rochester, came here as members of the college's Fremin Mission Society which works in various parts of the country.

During a two-week period here as guests of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Doychak, the girls conducted daily Christian Doctrine classes for 42 boys and girls, including pre-schoolers and students from first to ninth grades.

In addition, they taught religion classes and took a census for Msgr. David Bushey, parish administrator, at Our Lady of Mercy Mission at Boca Grande where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barrett of St. Rose of Lima parish, Miami Shores, who shop on vacation in the island.

According to the volunteers, who returned home to summer jobs and will be teaching in parochial and public schools in September, the mission society of the college administered by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Rochester, has during the past three years provided 36 volunteer teachers for summer vacation religion classes in Oklahoma and four volunteers.

While Ellen Ford, who will teach at Sacred Heart Catholic School, Rochester, went to visit friends in Fort Walton Beach, Susan Burns, who will join the faculty at House Henrietta School, Auburn, and Ana Sevier, who will be an instructor at St. Rose of Lima School, Rochester, accepted the invitation of the Barrett family to visit them in Miami.

Enthusiastic about the friendly reception which they had received from South Florida families, the girls were looking forward to relating their experiences to other members of the Fremin Mission Society.

A total of six parishes, in addition to Visitation, were present at the vigil. The hours are rotated so that no one group of men has the same hour on two successive vigils.

The Society founded in Rome in 1810 has since spread to practically every country in the world.

In a recent issue of Liguarian magazine, this is what they say about the Society:

"Priests who have seen the effect of this devotion are convinced that no society within the Church today exercises a deeper effect upon the layman toward transforming him into a fervent Catholic than the Nocturnal Adoration Society.

"The self-sacrifice and deep faith involved in this commitment, the silent and unsentimental prayer in the silence of the night, has proved 'propagation.' It has shown to devout Catholics who had been indifferent into wonderfully serious and solemn instruments of Christ's work in the lay apostolate.

"Who can be members of the Nocturnal Adoration Society? Membership is open only to men, young and old, but obviously they must be men of character and will power. They must have sufficient courage to sacrifice a couple of hours each month in order to go to church and adore Christ in the Blessed Sacrament in a program of public and private prayer.

"There are so many and so prescribed social activities."

A tonight in joining the Adoration Society is urged to contact I. Van Ederman at NA 6-2751 FR 4-7612.

The two other Nocturnal Adoration Societies in the Diocese also held their all-night vigils last Friday at St. Peter and Paul Church and Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Church in Fort Lauderdale.

Anyone interested in joining a group is urged to contact Dr. Paul O'Connor, rector of the college of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Church.

There are five salvage stores in South Dade. The Society operates simply and efficiently. The proceeds from two lists of unmeasurable clothing and furniture items that are collected from the various pickup points and sold at the store. And the Society does it in a manner unobtrusively and in a manner that clears away a cloud, a dying courage; when it treats the poor man with respect — by God himself to test our justice. And the poor man is given in his own way, a helping hand that revives.

Last year, Christopher Columbus High beat its big neighborhood rival Southwest High for the first time in football.

Now, the Explorers have a new cry: BEAT GABLES.

The Explorers play Coral Gables for the first time this fall, at Coral Gables Stadium.

“That’s all we’re talking about,” confirms Dick Pollock, the Columbus athletic director who sees triple duty as assistant football coach and head basketball coach.

“They just can’t wait to play Coral Gables. It would be the greatest thing if we beat them, no doubt about it.

“However, we play them in the middle of the season and I just hope that the kids don’t forget about those first four games.”

There is no arguing that a triumph over Coral Gables, long-time football power and a boys’ enrollment of approximately 300 in the top three grades, would be a big boost for the Columbus athletic program. The Gables has a long-time football power and a rich tradition.

“Poorly dressed for a game — and that means that the shortage of personnel produced.

“Our kids are getting out of the baby stage — they realize that they can compete against the big schools and even look forward to it. They’ve developed a tremendous school spirit.”

The school spirit soared last year when Columbus beat Miami Jackson in its opening game, the only loss that Jackson suffered on the way to the Gold Coast Conference championship. Jackson also tied Miami High, the state’s No. 1 football team, a feat that had some of the more vocal Explorer followers claiming the top spot for Columbus.

The Columbus athletic program received another lift when David Hiss, the squad’s ace halfback, a 350-pounder who ran on the track team, was picked as a member of the state’s all-star squad, the first time a South Florida Catholic high student had ever received such recognition.

Only school appears as a deterrent to future growth of the program. Columbus will play in Class AA competition — the state’s largest — this fall in all sports.

“It won’t affect our nailing much,” says Dicki, “as we already play mostly AA schools, anyway. It will present us with a challenge in tournament competition, however.

Last spring, Columbus won both the Class A district baseball and track titles, with the track team making it all the way to the four-team state tournament while the track squad finished third in the state finals.

Including the ninth grade about 500 students are expected this fall, the maximum that the school can hold. The Marist Brothers, who operate the school, have hopes of adding a new wing or taking over the seminary building so that it will have the space to serve as many as 1,000 students.

“That’s all we’d need and we could take on anyone on even terms. That’s all that’s holding us back,” was Pollock’s firm conviction.

How To Prepare A Child For 'New Baby'?

I am expecting my second child in four months. Is there anything I can do to help Julie, who is three, adjust to the new baby? In some families I have seen the older child take a real dislike to the new baby and, in one instance, even try to do the baby physical harm. How can I avoid this?

Family Life Director, Archdiocese of Chicago

"First of all, stop worrying about it. People have been bringing home second babies for tens of thousands of year. I am sure that your good common sense will carry you through without scaring little Julie's psyche.

As we know, even the very young child has sensitivities and can be deeply affected by the things which go on in the family circle. So, some time spent in preparing Julie for her new brother or sister will be well invested.

Remember Julie has been the center of all your love and attention for three years. Now she is going to be asked to share the spotlight. One wit has said, with some truth, that the coming of a new baby is about as shocking to the older child as the spotlight. One wit has said, with some truth, that the coming of a new baby is about as shocking to the older child as the spotlight.

Try such a simple thing as having someone else carry the baby into the room when you return from the hospital so that you are free for a welcoming hug. Letting Julie hold the baby for a few moments, sitting in a big safe chair with a watchful adult nearby, can break the ice. Later try suggesting to visitors that they "speak to Julie first" and let her show them the baby.

Extra Attention Can Help

If the older child nag for attention, becomes especially morose or irritating, begins to act like a baby himself or goes back to bed-wetting, — these are signs that he is aware of his parents' love or care. Extra attention, more "growing up" privileges, more time with Mommy or Daddy, a toy, or a trip to the park, or just some warm cuddling can be very reassuring and will prove.

Foster Feeling Of Closeness

Even somewhat older, school-age children may show some resentment and "grudge" about the extra trouble or work the new baby causes. A story or two about the time when HE was a newborn infant will be very tiny. Tell her that it will be quite a while before he can walk or talk or do the things she does. By your own enthusiasm let her know that it will be fun to watch and help the baby learn things.

Is there anything I can do to help Julie, who is three, adjust to the new baby with a Florida National Bank check, you enjoy added prestige.

Let’s take to the water for a leisurely day of cruising or just to drift and fish. For food fare on the water, fishermen, skipper and mates alike will enjoy the convenience of individually packed lunches.

Here is an idea. Fill plastic cutlery trays at home, slip each into a plastic bag and carry in a portable cooler. Include silverware, paper napkins and plastic cup or glass in one section.

Ideal for the meal, which is limited to out-of-hand eating, is the basket’s frankfurter bun with cheese-bacon filling. Quickly prepared, this filling combines cottage cheese, cooked bacon, crumbled Bleu cheese, olives, celery and salad dressing.

And of course there is fried chicken and chocolate cake.

Most of the foods for this menu can be kept freeze-ready by the seasoned skipper’s mate. Below is the menu, slanted for a sail.

On chilly days, a hot sandwich which can be quickly served is indeed welcome. Here is an idea that is feasible if a vacuum bottle is part of the equipment.

To serve a hot frankfurter sandwich, fill a wide-mouthed vacuum bottle with boiling water before departing on the trip. At lunch time drop the frankfurters into the hot water either by impaling them on a long handled fork or tied to a string. The “franks” are dunked only long enough to heat them through. Place them between buns along with a spoonful of hot dog relish. Here is the menu to serve with the “hot dogs.”

Church Grows In Britain

LONDON (NC) — Since the end of World War II the number of Catholic churches and chapels in England and Wales has increased by 1,750 to a total of 4,400, and the number of priests has risen from 6,300 to 7,750.

The figures were disclosed by the weekly Catholic Herald, in an article about the Catholic Directory of Great Britain.

By WILLIAM H. MOORING

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — With nothing but “Leven Cream Back” and “That Touch of Mink” to account for the distribution of Hollywood in Focus for 1962, annual audit taken by “Fame,” gives Doris’s first place in the box office reports of theaters throughout the USA and Canada. She was tops in 1960 as well.

With the debatable exceptions of Love Me or Leave Me and Julie, Doris has yet to make what one might regard as an artistic movie. The same is true of the other nine big cash collectors.

Both of these films violated the talent and personal charm of Miss Day.

They made the Legion of Decency’s B list because of a “cultural” treatment of marriage, the glamorization of sexual promiscuity, superficiality, social naivete, rundown dialogue and false glamour.”

El mundo católico está celebrando hasta el próximo 24 de agosto el Año Santo Teresiano en memoria del edad del fundador del Charol de Santa Teresa de Jesús, en Avila, España, que fue el primer monasterio de la Reforma Teresiana.

Tanto en el mundo católico como en el protestante se ha dado una acogida muy favorable a este Año Teresiano, que es una invitación a un llenado de vida del espíritu de Jesús, en el espíritu de la Virgen María, con una nueva alianza de amor.

Mamá tiene un participado interés en la preparación de esta obra en memoria de la doctora castellana, que ha derramado su amor y su vida en el servicio de Dios y del hombre, en el camino de la sabiduría y la amistad.

La Visita del Obispo Carroll al Papa Paul

Bendice el Papa a Refugiados Cubanos

Su Santidad el Papa Paulo VI impartió una bendición especial a los cubanos refugiados en Miami, durante la visita que el Santo Padre hiciera el Obispo en esta Diócesis, Mons. Coleman F. Carroll.

Durante esa audiencia, el Sumo Pontífice mostró marcado interés por el progreso de la Iglesia en el S de la Florida, haciendo al Obispo Carroll porta d de su bendición apostólica para todo el pueblo de la Diócesis de Miami.

Cuando el tema de los refugiados cubanos fue tratado, el Papa expresó su preocupación, diciendo finalmente al Obispo Carroll: “A ellos, les envío mi bendición apostólica.”

La bendición papal a la Diócesis de Miami, envió da inmediatamente después de la elección papal, firmada por el Cardenal Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, secretario de Estado del Vaticano, dice:

“Su Santidad está profundamente agradecido por lo que los fieles de la Diócesis han ofrecido por los refugiados cubanos. El Papa les trae su bendición apostólica.”

El Obispo Carroll presentó al Papa Paulo VI el número de THE VOICE correspondiente al 25 de junio, que ofrecía en su portada la primera foto en color de los refugiados cubanos en Miami, en el primer vistazo intenso por el contenido de sus páginas.

La amistad del Obispo Carroll con el Santo Padre se remonta a los años en que su hermano, Mons. Walter Carroll, trabajaba a las órdenes del entonces Car den Martini en la Secretaría de Estado del Vaticano.

Refiriéndose a él, el Obispo Carroll dijo al regresar de su visita a Roma que “como resultado de una visita pastoral, su experiencia diplomática, su capacidad para hablar con personas de todas etapas, como hizo en la con cucción, el hombre que ahora ocupa el Trono de San Pedro ha sido comparado con el Papa Pío XII.

“En mi opinión, aunque tenga cualidades rela tivas a ambos, no creo que sea reflejo de ningún Pontífice anterior. Tal como se ha señalado, ‘Par dice como si él siempre hubiera sido Papa’."

Ethiopia: St. Vincent de Paul’s Daughters Need Help

When St. Vincent de Paul began his associations to aid the poor, he had in mind chiefly his native France. But his idea was so good that it spread to other parts of the world. We have seen his spiritual sons and daughters going out to all parts of the globe to spread his spirit in the apostolate of the poor. Today in the heart of Africa, in Addis Ababa, capital of ETHIOPIA, the daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul are educating poor children. . . . They are dedicating their lives but they desperately need the material means to realize their noble purpose. The dilapidated school which they are using at present is made of CICO, a mixture of dried mud and hay. . . . The roof is corrugated tin so that when it rains—that is every day during the long rains season—the school is a complete nuisance for the teacher to be heard. The Sisters appeal to us to help them obtain a modest building for their charges. Such a building will be provided.

This would be a worthwhile project for those devoted members of the St. Vincent de Paul groups in this country. . . . Any amount will be appreciated. Please send it now!

A PRIEST IN THE FAMILY?

ST. ANNE’S MELCHITE SEMINARY in Jerusalem is on the site of the traditional birth place of the Blessed Mother. Four hundred feet away is the DOME OF THE ROCK, a Moslem mosque, once the lo-"pose. The dilapidated school which is being used at present is made of stones which stump you, because they contain errors. How did the Catholic Church contradict the Bible? And how do they that know it? . . .

The Question Box

Those Ten Questions Protestant Unit Asks

By MSGR. H.D. CONWAY

Q. The Mission Board of a fast-growing Protestant denomination has issued a leaflet with a list of questions they would like Catholics to answer. The name of the leaflet is “Ask a Catholic.”

Will you tell me where the answers to these questions can be found in the Douay version of the Bible?

A. Ten questions are listed, none new or original. Each begins, “Where in the Douay Bible . . . ?” And the points you are challenged to find are: praying to Mary and the saints, the infallibility of Peter or any pope, purgatory, sinlessness of saints, and those of the human community, and those of each individual. And he sanctifies each individual by the divine Founder of the true Church.
