Cuba's Holy Week Reports Conflict

A Cuban exile group in Miami has noted a sharp difference between the local Havana radio reportage of Holy Week ceremonies and Havana's shortwave report for foreign audiences.

While the shortwave broadcasts reported on religious services in both Catholic and Protestant churches, the group said, "Holy Week was not mentioned even once by the Havana's local radio."

Pope Tells Why He Can't Visit Philippines This Year

MANILA (NC) — Pope Paul cited international tension as one reason why he cannot visit the Philippines this year.

He added that preparations for the fourth session of the ecumenical council also prevent him from coming here to take part in the observance marking the 400th anniversary of the introduction of Christianity in this Far Eastern nation.

"Nothing could give us greater pleasure than to see for our- selves the magnificent flowering of the missionary which has taken place (in the Philippines). The noble bastion of Christianity in the Far East, the Philippines have always cherished and fostered the traditions and truths brought to them by the first evangelists, and made them fructify in numerous social and educational institutions and in the fervent Christian life of the people."

"Divine Providence may indeed, we pray, enable us one day to visit your great country. For some time to come, however, it will not be possible for us to do so."

"The great preparatory work for the forthcoming session of the Second Vatican Council, which is to be the last and most important, with the most lasting effects on the life and history of the Church, keeps us continually occupied."

"Moreover, the present international situation, so full of tension and peril, makes it inopportune for us to leave this center of our apostolic ministry and responsibility."

POPE PAUL VI is seen as he delivered his Easter message from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica after celebrating Mass facing an estimated 100,000 people in the square.

Message Of Resurrection Is Optimism, Pope States

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI, speaking on Easter to all Catholics, all Christians and all men of good will, said that optimism is the message of the Resurrection.

"Optimism will prevail," the Pope declared.

The Pope also made what was generally regarded as a veiled appeal for an end to the fighting in Viet Nam. He said:

"May the day come on which the discord among peoples will be resolved, not with the force of arms but rather in the light of reasonable negotiations. And let every war and guerrilla operation give way to constructive collaboration which is mutual and fraternal."

"And may the day come on which the prodigious energies of progress will be employed to satisfy the world's hunger and to educate future generations, to bring remedies to the recurrent ills of mankind."

His speech, delivered from a balcony overlooking a crowd of more than 100,000 people who had braved rains to attend his Mass in St. Peter's square, brought the mystery of the Resurrection to bear on the problems of modern man.

"Such a positive, optimistic viewpoint, drawn from the mystery of the risen life, thrown into clear relief not only the world outside man but the world within him — his own heart and soul," the Pope said.

"There can be no doubt that the heart of man, especially the heart of contemporary man, is reaching out for life, for growth, for fullness of knowledge and possession, for the power to will and to enjoy, for achievement of happiness."

But the Pope asserted that man's realistic search for happiness "arises up in his heart feelings of dissatisfaction, duress,"

Bishop Carroll To Represent Hierarchy At Brazil Rite

Representing the American hierarchy, Bishop Coleman P. Carroll will head a delegation representing U.S. Catholics at the May 3 inauguration of a key regional seminary in Recife, chief city of the poverty-stricken northeastern region of Brazil.

The Bishop will be accompanied by Joseph M. Fitzgerald, K.S.G., of Miami, vice president of Serra International, dedicated to the promotion of vocations to the diocesan priesthood.

More than half a million dollars from mission funds collected in the United States were assigned to construction of the seminary by the Vatican's Pontifical Commission for Latin America.

Text Of Pope Paul's Easter Message

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The following is a translation of the Easter message of Pope Paul VI.

The world is a mystery that embraces all of human existence, life beyond the grave. But it is held out to all who wish for it. Resignation exists and can be achieved. The perfection of our being, accomplished in the heights of the possible degree, enriched even beyond its natural capacity — the light of glory, as it is called by those who have meditated on the Easter promise — the power to know, love and joy should therefore be the mark of the spiritual life of man who believes in Christ, and in Mary, His Mother.

This forward-looking, optimistic vision characteristic of the Christian will diffuse over the world a new spirit, once comforting and salutary. In it the world appears for the first time in its true beauty.

In the words of Holy Scripture, God looked out over the universe which had come into being through His word and said that it was good (Gen. 1:1, 21 and 31), and something of His joy in the knowledge of the supreme value of man was reflected in the heart of man as he surveyed, probes and masters the world, encroached upon in the case of modern man as he drives on toward the understanding and mastery of everything that has been planted and built up on the face of the earth.

The Paschal mystery is not just the mystery of Him who was the Son of God and Son of Man. It belongs also to the sons of men who have come to be the sons of God.

All-Embracing

It is a mystery that embraces all of human existence, life beyond the grave. It is accomplished in Our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and in Mary, His beloved mother, in all of which we have already entered through Baptism, and which will continue to certain fulfillment on the last day, according to that promise which can never fail. Therefore, resolutely...

The Easter message, which reveals to us in the light of Christ the destiny of mankind, transcends and superseded all other attempts to give meaning to life. It transcends that blind and despairing view of reality which yields to death and final triumph. It surpasses likewise that other vision, filled with doubts and uncertainties, which is so little of another life after death and whose message derives more from wishes and feelings than from sure knowledge.

The Easter message surpasses that view of human existence which lays claim to present evils and gives the impression of being wise in proportion to its justifications, but it embraces even the very Gospel teaching of the inseparable transcendence of all things, of the poignant depths of evil, of the resigned acceptance of suffering, of the value of renunciation and sacrifice. It is a lesson which but prepares, which crowns and triumph lesson of victory and of life — the mystery of our redemption, the message of the Resurrection.

Optimism Will Prevail

May the day come on which the discord among peoples will be resolved, not with the force of arms but rather in the light of reasonable negotiations. And let every war and guerrilla operation give way to a constructive cooperation which is mutual and fraternal.

And may the day come on which peace and justice, once comforting and salutary, will be employed to satisfy the world's hunger and the many future generations, to bring remedies to the recurrent ills of mankind.

And let there no longer be on this earth any of those delusions and false ideologies, urged on by their need for a new wisdom or because they have accepted this false ideology, urged on by the strength of men who believe in Christ. And most of these the light of glory, as it is called by those who have meditated on the Easter promise — the power to know, love and joy should therefore be the mark of the spiritual life of man who believes in Christ, and in Mary, His Mother.

fear, dejected pessimism and uncertainty about the future. All these destroy foundations of the light of glory which reveals man's true nature as well as his true ends.

The Pope's final expression of longing for was an end to political and religious persecutions in Our Holy Church. And so the Pope said: "And let there no longer be on this earth any of those delusions and false ideologies, urged on by their need for a new wisdom or because they have accepted this new wisdom which reveals man's true nature as well as his true ends."

Cardinal Spellman Writes Attack On Anti-Semitism

MARKYNOLA, N. Y. (AP) — "Anti-Semitism can never find a basis in the Catholic religion." Frederick Cardinal Spellman of New York has declared. "From emphasizing the differences which divide Jews and Christians, our faith stresses our common origins and the titles which bind us together," he said in a guest editorial in Markynola magazine.

Cardinal Spellman declared: "A surprising number of people believe that the Jewish people have always suffered as a result of persecution as a punishment for their part in the Crucifixion of Christ. This is not Christianity. I don't know where they learned it but surely it was not from the teachings of their Church. It is one of those distorted and terribly harmful notions which somehow gain currency and like a cancer spread among certain people who wish to justify their own bigotry."

"The question of responsibility for the crucifixion of Jesus as an event in history," the cardinal added, "belongs only to those who were present at the time and who cooperated in His death. It is simply absurd to maintain that there is some kind of continuing guilt which is transferred to any group and which rests upon them as a curse for which they must suffer.

Time Of Deep Satisfaction

For Catholic Educators

As twenty-five thousand Catholic educators registered at the annual National Catholic Education Association Convention in New York this week, they were not unaware that for the first time in history, Catholic schools are being held open as partners with public school systems in tackling nation’s education problems.

Now much difference this made in the deliberations of the convention delegates is anyone’s guess. But it is reasonable to expect that some planning for the future and some worries about the present must have been influenced by the decision of the Roman Curia recently to close religious schools in its Aid to Education bill.

One priest-superintendent of schools stated that: “For the first time schools have been recognized as an integral part of the American Educational System.” This alone is reason enough for rejoicing among teachers and administrators who are developing their lives in education in parochial schools.

Non-Catholic educators have commented favorably on the unprecedented action of Congress. Walter Lippman, for instance, is commenting on the Aid to Education bill.

“...What is novel in it and highly significant is the recognition by Congress that religious schools are American schools, that they are an essential part of the American school system. Inasmuch as the religious schools instruct in religion, they cannot be given federal aid without contravening the First Amendment. But in so far as education which for religious reasons, they are entitled to receive federal aid...” It has never been the rule or the practice to make it compulsory that children educated in public schools alone... A parochial school is an American school, and those who would deny it any public assistance ought, if they had the courage of their convictions, to shut it down and go home...”

It is true that the amount of aid offered at present is small in comparison to the enormous need, and some educators have reserved their judgment for the time when the Act has been opened. A precedent has been set. There is official recognition that the rule or the practice to make it compulsory that children be educated in public schools alone... A parochial school is an American school, and those who would deny it any public assistance ought, if they had the courage of their convictions, to shut it down and go home...”

One of the unlikely results of the Vatican Council and surely one that would have caused astonishment anywhere just a few years ago is the establishment of the new Secretariat for Non-believers, composed of Bishops specifically delegated to deal with atheists.

A recent statement of this unique committee is very broad. It will conduct research in order to “weigh and evaluate the approach of those who disbelieve in God.” It will use all the resources available, theological and pastoral, finding no atheism to promote a “dialogue” with atheists, not in order to attack them, but “to promote the pastoral efforts of the Church.”

Decision In Germany

Some have expected the Catholic Bishops in Germany to take the most radical steps in determining what measures Catholics would follow in seeking unity with Protestants and Orthodox.

Since German Catholics and Protestants have really been in a dialogue since World War II and have already cooperated in many areas unknown in the United States, there has been much speculation about drastic changes in attitudes, especially where common worship in church is concerned.

A few days ago news from Germany indicated that the Catholic Bishops, after a three-day meeting, have officially decided to make the chalice available to them. They have come out with a strong statement against Catholics participating in joint Eucharistic Liturgy with Protestants.

The reason given: Participation of this nature “could simulate a nonexistent church unity.” Therefore, at the present time it could do considerable more harm than good and cause the Ecumenical Movement to build on false bases.

The wisdom in such a decision seems quite obvious, if one realizes the enormous differences in belief concerning the Holy Eucharist in the Lord’s Supper, as it is variously practiced.

Much time will be needed for dialogue to explain mutual beliefs and the reasons for convictions, and indeed much more time will be required for love to build up an atmosphere of respect and tolerance.

We must walk before we can run. The eagles keep watchings interesting and keep people awake, but thank goodness they are not the leaders. Many short steps in the question of unity are being taken. All these spell progress, and all of them taken together in time will represent giant strides towards the fulfillment of Christ’s prayer for one flock and one shepherd.
Doubters Should Pray Humbly For Faith

By MSGR. JAMES J. WALSH

Tradition tells us that St. Thomas the Apostle died martyred for the faith in India. He is the same Thomas who at first refused to believe the Resurrection of Our Lord. He was a man of action, a man of firm faith, and when he had been stubborn in unbelief, his loyalty led to his execution in defense of the same Lord Whom he had doubted.

Here is a wonderful proof how God turns all things to good. Thomas’ hard, unyielding manner in the face of a mysterious truth teaches us more about faith than any sermons or the administrative attitude of the other Apostles. It is the Doubter Whose “by his imag- inance has instructed the igno- rant and by his incredulity has served for the faith of all ages.”

It is something of a shock to realize that one of the trusted Apostles could come from such a distance to be the fundamental proof of the Christian religion. Thomas had lived with Our Lord for three years. He was not a stranger to His power over death. He was by His side at the tomb of Lazarus when the man who had been dead for days took up a normal life again.

HAD WITNESSED MIRACLES

With his own eyes he had wit- nessed countless other miracles — privileges granted to only a few men. He had heard the Apostles testify about the power of God could speak. Above all, at least three times he had heard Christ say in Jerusalem that He would be put to death, and on the third day would rise again.

Thomas, from a distance, saw Him die. But on the third day he remained despondent without a spark of hope. When the news came in the morning that the women had found the tomb empty and had even heard from angels the assurance, “He is not here but has risen,” St. Luke reports the Apostle ignored the tale as nonsense. Thom- as had no time for their almost hysterical protest.

It has never been revealed why he alone was separated from the group of the Apostles on the night of the Resurrection. Whatever the reason, he missed that scene which staggered the imagination — the sudden, breath-taking appearance of Christ in the midst of His de- jected, frightened Apostles.

Some time later Thomas knocked at the door which had been bolted for fear of their enemies. His gesture was not a chance finding in his companions’ classrooms. Their grief had given way to unrestrained joy. Here the young and dull of disillusionment was shat- tered by their excited cries. St. John, with the greatest reserve, writes that the Apostles greeted Thom- as as with the simple statement, “We have the Lord.”

However, one can imagine that he was at once besieged on all sides with details of Christ’s visit. His wounds were still visible in His hands and feet and side. He is not a ghost, because He gave them the power to forgive sin: He opened their minds to understand why He had to suf- fer and die and then rise again. While He listened to all the words that Thomas kept shaking his head.

His rapturous account of Him left him cold, unmoved, and he felt the loneliness and bewilderment of the unbeliever who wonders why others find joy in things he cannot see.

GIFT OF FAITH

There is indeed something of Thomas’ attitude in all of us. Many never receive the gift of faith; perhaps because in their pride and presumption they cling boldly to personal opinions which contradict divinely revealed truths. They are presumptuous enough to demand more proof than the saints and great minds of every genera- tion found sufficient.

It is very sad because faith can be given only when a crea- ture is disposed to bow before God and is willing to learn from God on His terms. Those who have faith and find it weak and rebellious at the time of trial or in the face of bad example or because of certain laws above all to God and are not willing to pray boldly. God will not re- fuse the grace of a stronger faith. There is no stage of our lives in which we can say with much profit: “Lord, I believe, help Thou my unbelief.”

When Christ was speaking of the mansions in His Father’s home, only Thomas invited Him with the blunt question, “Lord, we know not whither Thou goest and how can we know the way?”

ADmits UNBELIEF

Now the facetious Apostle facetiously and admitted his un- belief. More than that, he dar- ed to lay down to Christ terms for belief. Unless “I see in His hands the print of the nails and put my finger into the place of the nails, and put my hand into His side I will not believe.”

Our Lord accepted his terms. He did not so much for Thom- as’ sake as for our own. He let him see the print of the nails and let him place his hands on the wounds. Patiently He did not bless Thomas, how- ever. He reserved the blessing for the faithful in every age who would be willing to believe Him without seeing Him. They are truly blessed who accept Christ on His word, on His authority, not on the testimony of their senses. That is the true mean- ing of the prayer — how our Lord’s attitude in all of us.

Thomas’ attitude is not the same as with the simple statement, “We have the Lord.”

We have records of this. Once

The impor- tance of this ex- pression is deep- ly enmeshed in the dialogue of the Church with the World.

THERE ARE SIGNS OF SPRING

Father De Paoli, in his “Signs of the Times,” an article that has re- srued for so long of leaves, which seem to break out in green buds overnight, and in the return of the birds from their winter vacations.

Rome has certain signs of Spring which form part of her folklore.

After a long winter bundled in warm clothing, the “Romani” emerge from their cold houses to seek the warm sun. To be sure there are favorite spots where one can warm his hands, like Rome’s roundabout at St. Peter’s and the Chiesa Nuova of St. Philip Neri.

Spring reveals itself in the warm balmy days which herald the passing of Winter, in the

GOD LOVE YOU
Most Reverend Fulton J. Sheen

The mother of a young family, working in the kitchen, is besieged by the varied problems of her little ones: a crying baby here, a dish there, a bruised ego there.

Our office, too, which is charged by the Holy Father to help all the missions of the world has its problems, great and small. Within a few hours of each other, two letters from widely different parts of the world came to our desk. One told how death came to two nuns and five priests. The sisters, who had dedicated themselves to serving lepers, were cut to pieces and partially eaten by cannibals. The priests were brutally murdered and then hacked to pieces. They had been serving in the missions for 15 years.

The other letter came from a different part of the world. It told of one of our priests who was captured by Communists after they had completely destroyed his church and rectory. His bishop writes: "God alone knows what they are doing to this poor priest. He is 67 years old and has been very sick for many years. We have found it absolutely impossible to trace him, but it is rumored that he was killed by these godless men... Two of our sisters were carried away by the same enemies of the faith. At midnight, they were condemned to death by a Communist court, ordered to take off their religious habits and to follow them. No one knows what happened. May the Good Lord have mercy on these innocent victims, and may He forgive the Communists."

These letters speak for themselves. Is there anything for me to add? There may be something, however, for you to add. (Should it be, to subtract?) These suffering missionaries are part of your body, which is the Church. If your leg is cut and bleeding, do not your hands rush to bind up the wound? If then, the Body of Christ is in agony in mission lands, will you not subtract a little of your comfort for them? Give up a luxury that others may have a necessity; give up a necessity that they may have life. Remember: The soul you save may be winning precious souls for Christ. Marian Devotion Enhanced By Vatican II

(The following is one in a series of articles in which key American bishops assess the practical consequences of the decrees made at the end of the third session of the Second Vatican Council.)

The Second Vatican Council's teaching on the Blessed Virgin should enhance the devotion of Catholics toward the Mother of Christ.

This is because the council's "Constitution on the Church" and its chapter on Mary stress her as an inseparable part of God's plan from the Redeemer.

This is the consensus of U.S. prelates whose comments on the council's teaching about Mary were gathered by the NCWC News Service through a questionnaire and a survey of formal remarks.

Several prelates took sharp issue with what they called conclusions that the council sought to downgrade the role of the Blessed Virgin in the Church.

Archbishop John J. Krol of Philadelphia, who is an undersecretary of the council, noted the "prolonged applause" from the so-called Council Fathers when Pope Paul VI declared Mary to be the Mother of the Church. This step had the "wholehearted approval" of the Fathers, he said.

"Universal Devotion"

The prelates also noted that the Fathers were "equally gratified" when Pope Paul emphasized the "universality of the devotion to Mary" by consecrating Mass during the council with bishops in whose dioceses are located major Marian shrines.

Archbishop Krol spoke of "the fact that devotion to Mary cannot be separated from that we pay to her Divine Son; that devotion to Mary would lose its reason for existence were it to be disassociated from devotion to Christ, and that our expression of homage to Mary in no way makes her equal to Christ."

Bishop John W. Lankester of Rochester, N.Y., made one of the most determined responses to reports that devotion to Mary is being minimized.

He denounced "extremists" on Church reform, including "extreme liturgists (who) ask us to minimize devotion to Mary and the saints" and said that to counter such voices the year 1965 in his diocese was to be dedicated to the Blessed Virgin as "Mother of the Church."

Similarly, Bishop Marion F. Forest of Dodge City, Kan., said "an attempt has been made to downgrade our Blessed Mother" and that "most of the trouble has centered upon the attempts of a few to use terms that are extravagant, that would make it seem that a person believes that Mary was her self divine."

"Why are we, sinners all, to bemoan the glory and the grace that belongs to Our Blessed Lady?" he asked.

CARDINAL RITTER'S VIEW

"As Cardinal of St. Louis asked about inclusion of the councils treatment of Mary in the Constitution on the Church, called this "highly appropriate."

"It would seem well-conceived to restate the venerated position of the Virgin Mother of God, while affording new insight into her position as the first of the redeemed and the type of the member of the Church," he said.

Bishop Charles H. Helmsing of Kansas City-St. Joseph, Mo., when asked about devotion to Mary, replied that "I believe that most of our Catholic people have had a true and proper devotion to Mary."

"They understand that she is for them a model of virtue. They understand her role as one to be invoked as their advocate. They understand her all-powerful intercession with God. The stress on the place of Mary in salvation's history and the use of Scripture in describing her role in the Church should eliminate any so-called exaggerations or problems that we must sometimes meet," he said.

BYZANTINE PRELATE

"The effect the council's teaching on Mary may have on other Christians, Bishop Nicholas E. Elko of the Pittsburgh Byzantine rite saw it as having "little effect" on Protestant because "their objections are against the practice rather than the well-explained doctrine."

"I must confess," said Bishop Wright, "that I find the reciprocal roadblocks or blind spots or psychological bazars have to be — more often than otherwise — on the level of cultural conflicts rather than of theology in any fair and effective sense; I strongly feel that the theologial consonance will be more easy to discover and to develop when the inherited cultural patterns (many of them on all sides with minimal theological elements) have relaxed a bit."
The Diocese of Miami was praised in a Pan American Day sermon for "promoting various forms of true unity."

Father Mauro Barrenechea, S. J., director of the Inter-American Institute of Social Formation, in delivering the sermon at the Pan American Day Mass in Gesu Church last Tuesday, declared that through the "initiative of Bishop Coleman F. Carroll, this Diocese was the first institution to take care of the Cuban refugees as brethren in Christ persecuted by the Communist dictatorship."

"Some day," said Father Barrenechea, "perhaps not too far from now, Cuba will be free again, because the present unity imposed over there by deception and force, cannot last long."

Father Barrenechea declared that "then, when the exiled Cubans will return to their homes, they will take with them within their hearts, from the Diocese of Miami, the seed of the unity in Christ."

"On the other hand," said Father Barrenechea, "the Diocese of Miami, is also first in organizing a Neighborhood Youth Corps under religious auspices."

Father Barrenechea pointed out that "this project is already in operation, and through it the gap existing between races and social classes will be shortened, and the uniting bond in Christ will be tightened."

Citing the Inter-American Institute of Social Formation which has been established by the Diocese at Opa-locka airport, Father Barrenechea asserted that "at the international level, this is the first and only institution totally committed to the Christian formation of leaders from Latin America."

"Men from various fields of social action are enriched here," said Father Barrenechea, "with knowledge for their minds, motivation for their hearts and techniques for their activities."

"All this," he added, "is performed with the spirit of Christ, this spirit which leads to genuine unity: the unity based on Truth and Love."

"This," declared Father Barrenechea, "is the way to achieve the wishes of Christ when He said, 'Thou Father, in Me and I in Thee.'"

Lashing out at the "counterfeit" unity being sought by "the Communists in Cuba and other unfortunate countries," Father Barrenechea proclaimed that "sooner or later" the Red government in Cuba would "collapse."

Father Barrenechea also criticized any attempts to bring about unity based on "armament power," "terror," "selfishness," or "criminal interests," and asserted that these will not "endure the test of time."

"Only the unity based on Christ will last forever," Father Barrenechea said, adding that "the unity in Christ binds men together by their minds and by their hearts."

"Human minds are bound together by the acceptance of basic Christian principals, illuminated by our Faith," Father Barrenechea declared, "and human hearts become united in a great divine and human love."

"By means of such bond," said Father Barrenechea, "we love God with all our strength and we love our neighbors as we love ourselves. This is the true unity: the one by which we may dedicate ourselves totally to the service of God and our neighbor."

The Pan American Mass was celebrated by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll. Assisting at the Mass were members of the Consular Corps in the Miami area, members of the clergy and seminarians.

NEW YORK (N.C.) — The "Great Society" bridge over which President Johnson has asked the nation to seek must be built on the philosophy that Americans are a religious people, Catholic educators heard here.

"We must not be afraid to think and speak and act like religious people," said Auxiliary Bishop John S. Spence of Washington.

The prelate delivered the address at the opening Mass of the 42nd annual convention of the National Catholic Educational Association.

CARDINAL PRESIDES

Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, host to the 62nd annual convention of the National Catholic Educational Association, said:

"The Holy Father has learned of the conclusions of the illusory archdiocese of New York.

"His Holiness notes with great pleasure the timeliness of your theme and to your momentous gathering of Catholic educators cordially imparts his pledge of abiding divine assistance upon Your Eminence, upon Mons. [Frederick G.] Hochwalt (N.C.E.A. secretary general) and the members of the association, and he imparts to the association his paternal apostolic benediction."

Catholic Educators Meet

1. An American people, Catholic educators believe, must be of value to you, write to Mr. Carl J. Martin, in care of this bank. We will forward you any immediate funds on your signature alone and you have the privilege of first refusal of all your resources in excess of $65,000.00 and Capital and Surplus of $5,287,000.00 can loan up to $525,000.00 to any one borrower.

2. We are indeed a religious people, the Cardenal continued. "In this tradition, our nation has grown to greatness. In this spirit and with this power, we can help to build the Great Society to which President Johnson has so eloquently called us."

3. Sister Mary Lake, who is mother general of the Sisters of Loreto of Nerinx, Ky., and chairperson of the Committee on Religious Education of the N.C.E.A., said that "the Church has clearly and constantly called us to the open seas of ecumenism."

4. "Wholesome attitudes are the bedrock of any school system and it's up to the teacher to help children develop a religious people, Bishop Spence ended. "We must not be afraid to think and speak and act like religious people."

Pope Walks Way of Cross

In Memory Of Crucifixion

To this the Pope, standing high above the crowd collected in the immense open space in front of the Coliseum and the Arch of Constantine, answered:

"But this explains precisely the sorrow of innocence and why it is most precious. Christ also was innocent... It is precisely because He was the Lamb of God, the victims, that He could save the world."

Wearing a small red cape, large rochet, and white cappa, the Pope, followed by members of his private household, marched the Stations of the Cross in the sight and company of thousands of Romans and pilgrims. The Pope, on the windy and rain-becked night of Good Friday, declared: "The redeeming virtue of Christ expresses itself in every human sorrow."

At an improvised altar on the slopes of Rome's ancient Palatine Hill, with the ruined vault of the once proud Temple of Venus and Rome as a background, the Pope dwelt on the mystery and even "repugnance" of sorrow. He said:

"We look at innocent sorrow. Who does not see it? Poor children carry in their flesh the inheritance of the shortcomings of their father or mother. Who has not seen the many underserved, unwanted illnesses, the unhappiness for which there is no explanation?"

Requiem For Skin Diver, Lost Off Florida Coast

HOLLYWOOD — Requiem masses have been sung here and in Cleveland for Edward Speck, skin diver, lost at sea while swimming off the Hillsboro Inlet lighthouse.

A member of Nativity parish, West Hollywood, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Speck, of Adam Street, Holly- wood, members of the Little Flower parish and formerly of Our Lady of Good Counsel parish, Cleveland.

His skin diving boat was found drifting with its anchor sheered off. A massive search conducted by the Coast Guard, with 50 small boat owners joining in over a 20 mile by 60 mile area proved fruitless.

He went out in his 16-foot pontoon skiff alone from Port Everglades. It was found about a mile and a half offshore by a Coast Guard helicopter. The motor was in a position for running and all gear was on board except the swimming suit, tee shirt and flippers Speck was wearing.

The father of five children between the ages of 9 and 16, Speck was a jet engine tester in the Army five years. The Speck family has resided in Hollywood for 17 years.

Secretariado Para "No Creyentes", Servirá a los Incrédulos

La Secretaría para Relaciones con los "No Creyentes", establecida por el Papa Paulo VI, recientemente, estará dirigida por el cardenal Franziskus Koenig de Viena.

La acción de la nueva secretaría no se circunscribirá al ateísmo en los países occidentales sino que también comprenderá todas las otras formas de ateísmo que se presentan en Occidente.

El secretariado tendrá como sede provisional el Palacio de Santa María en el interior de la Ciudad del Vaticano; su sede definitiva será decreada después del término del consistorio. Temporar será designado hasta el momento a sus integrantes, que seguramente serán obispos de distintas nacionalidades y consejeros eclesiásticos e laicos. El Padre Francesco Mingno ha sido nombrado secretario.

La Secretaría ha sido instituida siguiendo las normas establecidas para las secretarías de relaciones con los no católicos y con los de las confesiones no cristianas. Su propósito es lograr una amplia información sobre todas las teorías de los no creyentes, sean comunismos, ateos, sean otras formas de ateísmo.

El cardenal Koenig es considerado como uno de los pensadores más liberales de la Iglesia y en los círculos vaticanos se le considera el hombre más apto para dirigir la nueva secretaría, ya que está muy familiarizado con las modernas ideologías no católicas.

El anuncio del Vaticano expresó que el establecimiento de este organismo de ninguna manera modificará la conducción por la Iglesia del ateoismo como un error moral; pero refleja la preocupación del Sumo Pontífice para llegar al ateísmo y comprenderlo.

En su encíclica "Ecclesiam suam", el Papa-Paolo VI dice: "A veces, también el ateísmo es estimulado por sentimientos de amor humanos, sin pretenderlo". Y luego dijo que a pesar de que se presenta de una manera modesta, quiere ser un servicio para todo el mundo. "Es una prueba de la misericordia y del amor de la Iglesia por todos, por eso espera de todos apoyo y comprensión".

Un ateísmo es uno de los fenómenos más impresionantes de nuestra época. Ya no se presenta como simple indiferencia religiosa, sino que ha asumido las características de una rebelión... un fenómeno que se ha dado en llamar "movimiento cultural, una organización militar".

La Iglesia se siente deuda de todos los hombres, aún de los más alejados, y tiene el deber de entregar su mensaje, por eso es que se ha instituido el Secretariado para los "No Creyentes" dijo la Radio Vaticana.

Asimismo, señaló que el secretariado recientemente creado no tiene el propósito de combatir a los incrédules sino que por el contrario es "para ellos". Luego dijo que a pesar de que se presenta de una manera modesta, quiere ser un servicio para todo el mundo. "Es una prueba del amor de la Iglesia por todos, por eso espera de todos apoyo y comprensión".

WEST PALM BEACH — Last in Week was observed at Cardinal Newman High School from April 12 through April 16. Highlighting this week were points in Roman history, aspects of Roman life, and the values of the Latin language were emphasized.

Daily broadcasts by Publics Chetlana Hansan, and Quintus Davidinus Brinkley, briefed the school concerning such happenings as Caesar's conquests in Gaul, his assassination, and the Second Triumvirate. Humorous Roman commercials studded these broadcasts and added to the general enjoyment.

All students were invited to participate in a Latin poster contest, the subjects for which were the values of Latin, English derivatives from Latin, and Roman Influences in our lives. William Seeman, a member of the Cicero class was placed in charge of handling this competition.

Another student of the Cicero class was the guest of a Roman banquest on Thursday, April 22. Due to the work of Sr. Mary Carla O.P. and many students, Latin week offered a great deal of enrichment and enjoyment to all.

defense and supervised program of activity and a natural setting of exceptional beauty in a recipe for real Catholic Camp Life.

The Camp is located in the hills of west central Florida, along the shores of lake Tampa Apsinle and within the area of great springs, rivers, forests and unpolluted nature.

We do not try to run a hotel. Yet every thought and consideration is given to the health and safety of the camper. But real true camping experience is the dominating theme. We believe that such experience can provide qualities of self-reliance and obedience that other phases of education cannot provide.

K. Of C. Track Championships Saturday

The Voice Of Sports

West Palm Beach are expected to be the Knights’ top challengers.

Columbus has a standout half-miler in Chris Host, who owns the GCC title with a 1:58.5 record clocking. Chris ran the mile last year and may be double duty in the K. of C. meet in an effort to boost the Explorers team score.

LaSalle will be led by Ramiro Castro in the 800, Tom O’Malley in the 440 and Lou McNamar in the dashes.

Cardinal Newman’s strength is centered around Ken Duffy and John Halbleib in the hurdles, Phil Kaletta in the 440 and Jim Cushin in the high jump.

Chaminade High, which made an impressive showing against bigger schools in the Broward County championships last week, will be headed by county broad jump champ Jim Burrows (10-5), dash man Rich Hardigree, who posted seconds in both the 100 and 220, and a strong relay unit.

Fred Krishon of Mgr. Pace, with a 10-4 1/2 in the broad jump, is the Spartans’ top contender.

LaSalle High won the South Atlantic Conference baseball title butMgr. Pace High may have the last laugh.

LaSalle clinched the SAC crown with a 5-2 triumph over Jupiter High on a one-hit pitching effort by Manny Alvarez while Ernesto Jimenez and Tom Kozio were providing the hitting power.

The day before, though, the Royals had dropped a 9-2 non-conference decision to Chaminade High in the second inning of relief by Don Newhauser getting credit for the pitcher.

However, Larry Gilliard and Larry Pace in the game with Al Stankus getting the save ahead for this period. Chris ran the mile last year and may be double duty in the K. of C. meet in an effort to boost the Explorers team score.

Ronnie Huff was the star of Chaminade’s triumph over LaSalle, pitching a four-hitter and getting the last three innings with two singles and a triple. Buddy Nester added a pair of safeties to the Chaminade attack.

Against Pace, though, Nester took the mound and was knocked out of the box in three innings by Larry Gilla and Larry DeLeonardis each homered for Pace in the four with Al Stankus getting credit for the pitching win although needing one inning of relief by Don Newhauser in the second inning.

Stankus and Newhauser combined to limit Chaminade to just one hit and dropped a 9-2 non-conference decision to Chaminade High in the second inning of relief by Don Newhauser getting credit for the pitcher.

A Flavorful Foreign Food: Pierohki

By Florence Devaney

It's a charming custom in many homes to feature foods from other countries as part of the regular mealtime pattern. Not only are national dishes so tasty, they also encourage children and adults, too, to become more knowledgeable about traditions and customs of other peoples and an excellent method of introducing new foods to children. Preparation of foreign foods is extra cooking fun for you homemakers, too.

Your series of "travelogues in good eating" might begin with this simple yet intriguing supper menu from the Ukraine.

Heading the meal are Pierohki — meat-filled pastry dumplings sauced with melted butter or sour cream. Accompany the Pierohki with borsch, Ukrainian beet soup, or black bean soup and colulny. For dessert serve a fruit compote with crisp cookies. If you wish, serve hot tea in tall glasses in the Ukrainian manner.

Notice how easy the Pierohki dough is to prepare. Egg yolks added to the dough increase its elasticity and ease of handling. Unlike regular pastry which must be given kid glove treatment, you knead Pierohki dough before rolling out to paper thinneas.

Pierohki

1-1/2 cups sifted enriched flour* 2 egg whites
1 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 egg yolks, beaten DREY sour cream or melted butter or margarine, if desired
1 teaspoon salad oil
1/2 to 1/3 cup water

MEAT FILLING:

Shh together flour and salt. Blend egg yolks with oil. Add egg mixture and enough water to flour mixture to make a soft dough. Turn out on well floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth. Divide dough in half. Roll each half very thin (1/8-inch or thinner). Cut with floured 3-inch round cutter. Place 1 level tablespoonful of Meat Filling in center of each circle. Moisten edges of circle with egg white. Fold each circle in half, pinching and sealing edges together. Drop 3 or 4 Pierohki into 4 quart boiling, salted water. Cook until they rise to surface, about 1 minute. Drain on absorbent paper. Cook in skillet in butter or margarine until golden brown, turning once. Drain thoroughly before serving. Serve, if desired, with sour cream or melted butter.

Foreign Flair Furnished By Pierohki and Borsch

Meat Filling

1/2 cup finely chopped onion 1/2 teaspoon finely chopped salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 pound ground beef 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped 2 tablespoons dairy sour
2 tablespoons dairy sour

Brown onion in butter or margarine in heavy skillet. Add ground beef, stirring to break into small pieces, and cook until brown. Remove from heat. Stir in eggs, sour cream, salt, Worcestershire sauce, pepper and dill weed. Blend well. Use 1 level tablespoonful filling in center of each circle of dough.

Makes 2 to 21/4 dozen dumplings.

If you don't stuff and in the absence of other directions, spoon flour directly from container into a cup dry measure, level off, then remove two level tablespoonsfuls, according to USDA recommendations.

Borsch

1 (15-oz.) can, about 31/2 cups beets 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1 can condensed consomme 1 clove garlic, optional
1 clove garlic, optional

Combine all ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. Chill and serve garnished with sour cream, onion rings or hard boiled egg slices. Serves 4 to 5.

Plum Good

Plum good, describes this unusual salad. Canned or fresh plums are molded in a lemon gelatine, flavored with a sour rum and chopped crystallized ginger. Of course, you could make the salad without the ginger, but why would you? There's "golden flavor" in those nuggets. So get yourself a package of crystallized ginger and you'll find lots of ways to spend that "gold," starting with plum salad.

Plum Good Salad

1 (1 pound) can purple plums, drained 1/4 cup cold water
1 (1 ounce) package lemon 2 tablespoons light rum
flavored gelatine 1 (1 ounce) package crystallized ginger, chopped
Dash of salt 1/4 cup celery
1 cup hot water 1 banana, sliced

Pit and quarter the drained plums and drain again. Combine gelatine and salt and add hot water. Stir to dissolve. Add cold water and rum. Chill until mixture forms on a spoon. soft dough. Turn out on well floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth. Divide dough in half. Roll each half very thin (1/8-inch or thinner). Cut with floured 3-inch round cutter. Place 1 level tablespoonful of Meat Filling in center of each circle. Moisten edges of circle with egg white. Fold each circle in half, pinching and sealing edges together. Drop 3 or 4 Pierohki into 4 quart boiling, salted water. Cook until they rise to surface, about 1 minute. Drain on absorbent paper. Cook in skillet in butter or margarine until golden brown, turning once. Drain thoroughly before serving. Serve, if desired, with sour cream or melted butter.

Meat Filling

1/2 cup finely chopped onion 1/2 teaspoon finely chopped salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 pound ground beef 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped 2 tablespoons dairy sour
2 tablespoons dairy sour

Brown onion in butter or margarine in heavy skillet. Add ground beef, stirring to break into small pieces, and cook until brown. Remove from heat. Stir in eggs, sour cream, salt, Worcestershire sauce, pepper and dill weed. Blend well. Use 1 level tablespoonful filling in center of each circle of dough.

Makes 2 to 21/4 dozen dumplings.

If you don't stuff and in the absence of other directions, spoon flour directly from container into a cup dry measure, level off, then remove two level tablespoonsfuls, according to USDA recommendations.

Borsch

1 (15-oz.) can, about 31/2 cups beets 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup
1 can condensed consomme 1 clove garlic, optional
1 clove garlic, optional

Combine all ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. Chill and serve garnished with sour cream, onion rings or hard boiled egg slices. Serves 4 to 5.

Plum Good

Plum good, describes this unusual salad. Canned or fresh plums are molded in a lemon gelatine, flavored with a sour rum and chopped crystallized ginger. Of course, you could make the salad without the ginger, but why would you? There's "golden flavor" in those nuggets. So get yourself a package of crystallized ginger and you'll find lots of ways to spend that "gold," starting with plum salad.

Plum Good Salad

1 (1 pound) can purple plums, drained 1/4 cup cold water
1 (1 ounce) package lemon 2 tablespoons light rum
flavored gelatine 1 (1 ounce) package crystallized ginger, chopped
Dash of salt 1/4 cup celery
1 cup hot water 1 banana, sliced

Pit and quarter the drained plums and drain again. Combine gelatine and salt and add hot water. Stir to dissolve. Add cold water and rum. Chill until mixture forms on a spoon. Fold in plums, ginger, celery and banana. Turn into 8 or 6 individual molds and chill till firm. Unmold on lettuce and serve with whipped cream or mayonnaise.
She Worries about Brother, A Dreadful Drinker

THE FAMILY CLINIC

My brother, 29- and single, has been drinking regularly since he was in his late teens. He usually has two or three martinis before lunch, two or three before dinner at home and then drinks three or four bottles of beer at night or a few highballs. Lately he seems to forget what he said and did before going to bed even though he does not appear drunk. Is he alcoholic?

By JOHN J. KANE, Ph.D.

There are many aspects of your brother’s behavior that you have not mentioned and about which I can only speculate. I assume he has a job and works regularly because liquor costs money, especially martinis. I also assume that drinking has not yet interfered with his job.

Alcoholism is not easy to define. It is, of course, real enough and those who have lived with an alcoholic husband, brother or father may not agree that it is difficult to define. Perhaps the best approach is to say that alcoholism is a chronic illness, usually symptomatic of something serious than his drinking. It would usually consume.

The alcoholic does not drink because it is socially approved but because he has a compulsion to do so. For him drinking now has become a danger. Just as aspirin relieves the pain of a headache, alcohol relieves the psychiatric pain he suffers.

The natural history of most alcoholics covers a period of eight to ten years and sometimes longer. Most of them begin to drink while in their teens, and in a year achieve their first intoxication.

Blackouts Follow

A few years later they begin morning drinking and experience blackouts. This seems to happen to your brother.

If the alcoholic continues to drink other symptoms will appear as warning signs. One is the daytime bout, i.e., when the person becomes intoxicated during the day when it is not a Sunday, Tuesday or holiday.

Then come what alcoholics call the “benders.” The person goes on a drinking bout of at least two days duration. He has ceased to care about his job, his family or his friends. By this time, of course, he has already become a great danger to his wife, or married, if single will begin to worry about him. His employer will warn him. He is well on the way to complete alcoholism.

When drinking continues various other phases follow, such as convulsions after drinking. The alcoholic begins to worry about his supply of liquor and takes elaborate precautions to hide it. In the most unusual places. Quite often physical complications may now appear.

Delirium tremens may occur. This condition usually follows a prolonged period of drinking, although it has had a little food or sleep. In the beginning he is quite anxious and restless. In the delirium he really believes he sees “pink elephants” or some type of animal from which he may flee or pursue. He sometimes hears voices which threaten or are obscene.

Perhaps from this you can judge, first, whether your brother is an alcoholic on set; second, just how far down the road to complete alcoholism he may be.

On the basis of what you write he is not presently an alcoholic but he is regular, heavy drinker. Unfortunately, over half of the regular heavy drinkers do become alcoholics. Statistically speaking, its chances of developing alcoholism are fifty percent.

Consult Alcoholics Anonymous

Since you have expressed concern over your brother, I suggest you write to Al-Anon, an affiliate of Alcoholics Anonymous, of Al-Anon. One does not have to be an alcoholic to qualify, or the wife or child of one. At such meetings you will learn a great deal about the problem and how one lives with it. Many of them begin to drink while in their teens, and in a year achieve their first intoxication.

Seafood is great fried. Grand broiled. Divine au gratin. But hoot, mon! Have you tried it a la Newburg?

If ye haven't, mon, may we suggest you order a Newburg dish next time you're dining at a New England Oyster House. This mixed-ancestry gourmet delight originally came from Newburgh, Scotland (by way of some of the greatest French chefs). It blends a luscious, rich pure cream sauce with sherry wine. The result is heavenly. You can order delectable Alaskan king crab a la Newburg. Or shrimp, crabmeat, Florida or Maine lobster. Ummm. We envy you the opportunity to try each for the first time. Of the twenty-seventh. One good Newburg dish leads to another.

Incidentally, New England Oyster House prices are Scotch, too.'

Why Do Good Movies Sometimes Flop?

By WILLIAM H. MOORING
HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — For decades, this column has argued that the Catholic press, with its millions of readers, should get behind worthwhile, little films that are cold-shouldered by the national movie critics.

More than one such film has flopped miserably, when it must have served to addléd success, if the Catholic press and people had started the necessary updraft to get it into the ground.

There was the artistically beautiful biography of St. Vincent de Paul, “Monsieur Vincent”.

There was “Never Take No For An Answer”, in which a little Italian boy, encouraged by some nuns, he had made, he started them over.

More recently there was Edward Dmytryk’s “Reluctant Saint”, a semi-comic tale of St. Ward Dmytryk’s “Reluctant Saint”.

More recently there was Edward Dmytryk’s “Reluctant Saint”, a semi-comic tale of St. Ward Dmytryk’s “Reluctant Saint”.

When I first reviewed it (favorably) some readers protested hotly that no community of nuns would entertain a man in their parish. You could almost hear some of them add “particularly a-Mary, a-Mary”.

I had an answer because once spent a whole evening in St. Paul convent parlor, talking with the nuns about movies!

If you once, said “Lilies of the Field” was fairly publicized, it went on to make millions, at least of one which contains Poitier. More importantly, however, this success first began in the Catholic press.

Poitier, of course, won last year’s best actor Oscar. Lilia Skala, who so beautiful played the Mother Superior, got an Oscar bid as best supporting actress.

The film itself was given an Academy nomination among the best motion pictures of the year!

Another relatively small, but excellently produced film, “Nothing But a Man”, favorably reviewed in my columns a few weeks back, is now catching well-deserved space in our Catholic newspapers. While this may be partly due to current press emphasis upon Civil Rights in the South (the story deals with the anguish suffered, at the hands of blacks and whites, by a negro couple in the South), this press interest in a comparatively small movie, represents to me the breaking of ice.

If social controversy involving a moral issue has a place on the movie screen, religious differences of opinion should present no impediment either. And the pictures I mentioned earlier, as well as many others, were cold-shouldered because of a religious or semi-religious context.

FLAUM also came from the amazing library of “Let My People Go!” by some extra grim stuff picked up in Europe.

The network people had doubts and I do not wonder! Right enough none of their old ones ever be allowed to forget what hatred can do to the minds and spirits of men. The question was — and is — how many families, even as late as 9 or 10 p.m., have home records such reminders on their home TV?
GAZA: DUST AND BLINDNESS

They are the children of Arab refugees who lost their homes, farms, schools, and hospitals as a result of a cruel war 17 years ago. There is little children can do to help themselves if we, who can, do not help them now.

Take Eid, a dark-haired seven-year-old. He will be blind as long as he lives... to give him sight is beyond the power of medical science.

As an adult he will live by touch and taste and sound. As what become of him? Will not be a beggar on the streets, ragged, dusty, and helpless. At the Pontifical Mission Center for the Blind he can learn to read Braille, learn a trade, prepare himself for a useful life. To make room for Eid and children like him all ages, the Pontifical Center needs additional classroom space, equipment and facilities. The Holy Father asks your help. $2300 will provide a vitally needed classroom wing (name it for your favorite saint, in memory of a loved one), $616 will buy a set of Braille Encyclopedias. $124 a Braille classroom dictionary. $300 will pay for Eid's training at the Center for a year. $14 his lunch for a year, $8 his classroom "reader," $5 his own state and stylish.

For many months children of the PALESTINE REFUGEES have studied hard in catechetism classes led by our devoted mission priests and sisters. They know the answers—at least most of them!... And now comes the great day of the changes in the Mass. I wish you could understand the meaning of what I am writing. The changes in the Mass are great. It brings out the real meaning of what the priest is doing and expressing. It is not just moving motions at the altar and speaking in a language we do not understand. He is asking us to join with him at that sacrifice in our own language.

I am just one of the millions who have grown up in this liturgy. In fact the pleasantness of the change is irritating. The English prayers are thrilling. How wonderful to have our priests facing us during Mass, not shuffling back and forth with only an occasional side view!

I converted to Catholicism some nine years ago. I was a senior in high school. I graduated from a Catholic women's college last year. I have always been particularly pleased with the initiation of singing by the congregation... the only thing I missed in the Latin version of Catholicism was the singing by the congregation, and I don't think my husband has quite gotten over the fact that I go around the house often singing old Protestant hymns. During the Latin version (or old way) a person's thoughts could wander (and probably did most of the time) but not anymore. The Mass is today it should be and as Christ intended it to be: a full participation by all present, raising their voices in public acclaim to adore the Blessed Trinity.

I decided to make the effort necessary to understand the changes behind the changes, I now realize that recent changes are insignificant compared to those which have taken place since the first Mass was offer by our Lord. I now realize that there will always be changes, because human circumstances and conditions change. I now realize that these changes are designed to adapt us to the new life we have been given, and that is the reason why I am so happy about the changes.
